“Blessed are the merciful, for they shall receive mercy.” Matthew 5:7

We seek the mercy of God. We know that we are sinners. So would it not make sense to show mercy to others? After all, we are only giving what we ourselves are asking. But it seems hard for us to show mercy at times. Maybe we feel we have been mistreated, abused or insulted. Our human nature rises up in indignation. We have all experienced that. But what did Jesus say from the Cross? He asked forgiveness for His persecutors. Why would we think that we are more deserving of revenge than Jesus Himself?
