THANK YOU GOD

[Condensed from: “A Thanksgiving Prayer for Everyone” by James Martin, SJ]

Thank you, God. I'm grateful, God, for so many things. I know I'm not the most grateful person you know, so let me take some time to tell you what I'm thankful for.

I'm grateful for the gift of life. Without you I wouldn't be here. Without you nothing would be here.

I'm grateful for my parents. Even if they weren't perfect, they loved me the best they could, and they worked hard to make sure that I had enough to eat, that I was clothed and that I had a place to sleep.

I'm grateful for my friends. Even if I have only one good friend in my life right now, I'm so grateful. God, you show your love for me through my friends in ways that I sometimes overlook. They give me advice, they listen to me complain, and they celebrate with me, even if things aren't always going well for them. They help me to laugh. Help me to be a good friend in return.

I'm grateful for my family. I'm part of a family that has helped to make me the person I am. Help me to be a good family member, trying to help out when I can, make the phone call or pay a visit when they're lonely.

I'm grateful for my job. It's not always a bed of roses, but at least I have a place to work and I am able to make ends meet. Help me to be a good co-worker. Help me remember that all work done freely and with a loving heart is worthy in your sight.

I'm grateful, God, for all the things that I know many people in this world don't have: food, clean water, clothes, heat in the winter.

Did I mention how much I appreciate all the things you created? For the color of orange autumn leaves against the deep blue sky? For the smell of the sidewalk after a thunderstorm on a hot summer afternoon? For the way that the frost makes crazy patterns on windows in the winter? For the amazing smell of daffodils in the springtime?

Most of all, God, I'm grateful for your presence in my life. You're everywhere, and if I remember to pay attention I can see your invitation to meet you in every moment of the day. I know that it is you who turn my mind to thoughts of gratitude. And when I'm tempted to focus only on the problems and worries and fears, I know that I'm being led away from you.

I'm not always as thankful as I should be, but today I am. I am thankful, God.
Judy Pearson
