AUGUST 18TH 2019

The Twentieth Sunday in Ordinary Time

Growing as Disciples of Jesus, Making Disciples for Jesus

Queenship of the Blessed Virgin Mary August 22nd

With the certainty of faith we know that Jesus Christ is king in the full, literal, and absolute sense of the word; for He is true God and man. This does not, however, prevent Mary from sharing His royal prerogatives, though in a limited and analogous manner; for she was the Mother of Christ, and Christ is God; and she shared in the work of the divine Redeemer, in His struggles against enemies and in the triumph He won over them all. From this union with Christ the King she assuredly obtains so eminent a status that she stands high above all created things; and upon this same union with Christ is based that royal privilege enabling her to distribute the treasures of the kingdom of the divine Redeemer. And lastly, this same union with Christ is the fountain of the inexhaustible efficacy of her motherly intercession in the presence of the Son and of the Father.

Without doubt, then, does our holy Virgin possess a dignity that far transcends all other creatures. In the eyes of her Son she takes precedence over everyone else. In order to help us understand the preeminence that the Mother of God enjoys over all creation, it would help to remember that from the first moment of her conception the holy Virgin was filled with such a plenitude of grace as to surpass the graces enhancing all the saints. Recall what our predecessor Pius IX, of blessed memory, wrote in his Bull Ineffabilis Deus: "More than all the angels and all the saints has God ineffable freely endowed Mary with the fullness of the heavenly gifts that abound in the divine treasury; and she, preserving herself ever immaculately clean from the slightest taint of sin, attained a fullness of innocence and holiness so great as to be unthinkable apart from God Himself, a fullness that no one other than God will ever possess." Spurred on by piety and faith, may we glory in being subject to the rule of the Virgin Mother of God; she bears the royal sceptre in her hand, while her heart is ever aflame with motherlove.

Excerpted from Ad Caeli Reginam, Pius XII

Reflecting On Sunday's Readings

Jeremiah, in this week's Scripture, came bringing a message from God to the people of Israel and consequently was thrown into the mud of a well and left to die. Jesus came bringing a message of hope from the Father and he was beaten, abused, and nailed to a cross to die. What is it about God's communications to humanity that causes people to react so violently? G.K. Chesterton provides significant insight into humankind's longstanding attack on these messengers and messages from God, particularly as it came through Christ. "Suppose we heard an unknown man spoken of by many men. Suppose we were puzzled to hear that some men said he was too tall and some too short; some objected to his fatness, some lamented his leanness; some thought him too dark, and some too fair. One explanation (as has been already admitted) would be that he might be an odd shape. But there is another explanation. He might be the right shape. Outrageously tall men might feel him to be short. Very short men might feel him to be tall. Old bucks who are growing stout might consider him insufficiently filled out; old beaux who were growing thin might feel that he expanded beyond the narrow lines of elegance. Perhaps Swedes (who have pale hair like tow) called him a dark man, while negroes considered him distinctly blonde. Perhaps (in short) this extraordinary thing is really the ordinary thing; at least the normal thing, the centre. Perhaps, after all, it is Christianity that is sane and all its critics that are mad—in various ways," (from Orthodoxy). Men are willing to accept any religion, religious idea, or supposed message from God as long as it does not infringe upon their freedom to do and think whatever they please. Jesus, however, came to bring an exclusive message from the Father, one that was definitive and authoritative. Because it was definitive it did not leave room for people to form God into their own image, but rather demanded that they discover their true image mirrored back to them from God's Word and revelation. Because the message was authoritative (having come from the Authority) it left no wiggle room either for deviation from it, or disobedience to it. It is THE true message from the Father, though many may criticize it. I believe this is what Jesus was referring to when he said "Do you think that I have come to give peace on earth? No, I tell you, but rather division." Jesus' sacrifice on the cross and resurrection from the dead draws a dividing line in the sand for all of eternity. On one side of the line are all those who choose to believe Jesus and the message from the Father and to love and follow him. On the other side of the line are all those who choose not to believe and who in rebellion reject him as their Lord. Those are the only two choices open to mankind. Some, when they are confronted with these choices, lash out in anger and rebellion. Like the people in Chesterton's illustration, they justify doing so by accusing the Father and the Son of being "too something..." because the Father and the Son will not conform their message and their persons, to the image created by man's preferences and inclinations. And so the dividing line is drawn. When we consider Jesus and the great cloud of witnesses who have found him faithful and true we can do no other than to stride across the line in the sand of eternity, to stand with him as faithful followers—even if, like Jeremiah, we incur the wrath of those who would kill the messenger because they do not like the message.
