The Twenty-Seventh Sunday in Ordinary Time

Growing as Disciples of Jesus, Making Disciples for Jesus

Our Lady of the Rosary October 7th

Saint Pius V established this feast in 1573. The purpose was to thank God for the victory of Christians over the Turks at Lepanto—a victory attributed to the praying of the rosary. Clement XI extended the feast to the universal Church in 1716.

The development of the rosary has a long history. First a practice developed of praying 150 Our Fathers in imitation of the 150 Psalms. Then there was a parallel practice of praying 150 Hail Marys. Soon a mystery of Jesus' life was attached to each Hail Mary. Though Mary's giving of the rosary to Saint Dominic is recognized as a legend, the development of this prayer form owes much to the followers of Saint Dominic. One of them, Alan de la Roche, was known as "the apostle of the rosary." He founded the first Confraternity of the Rosary in the 15th century. In the 16th century, the rosary was developed to its present form—with the 15 mysteries: joyful, sorrowful and glorious. In 2002, Pope John Paul II added five Mysteries of Light to this devotion.

The purpose of the rosary is to help us meditate on the great mysteries of our salvation. Pius XII called it a compendium of the gospel. The main focus is on Jesus—his birth, life, death, and resurrection. The Our Fathers remind us that Jesus' Father is the initiator of salvation. The Hail Marys remind us to join with Mary in contemplating these mysteries. They also make us aware that Mary was and is intimately joined with her Son in all the mysteries of his earthly and heavenly existence. The Glory Bes remind us that the purpose of all life is the glory of the Trinity.

The rosary appeals to many. It is simple. The constant repetition of words helps create an atmosphere in which to contemplate the mysteries of God. We sense that Jesus and Mary are with us in the joys and sorrows of life. We grow in hope that God will bring us to share in the glory of Jesus and Mary forever.

The Rosary, piously meditated, prepares us for the Sacrifice of the altar, that august memorial of the mysteries which it imprints in the heart and mind of the Christian. Why not then, pray the holy rosary in the car as one drives to holy Mass. Pray it in thanksgiving on the way home.

Reflecting On Sunday's Readings

It is helpful to know the context of this week's Gospel reading in order to understand its meaning and application to our lives. In the previous verses, Luke 17:1-4, Jesus explains to the disciples, "Take heed to yourselves; if your brother sins, rebuke him, and if he repents, forgive him; and if he sins against you seven times in the day, and turns to you seven times, and says, 'I repent,' you must forgive him." These are very strong words that advise the disciples to be gracious and unrelenting in their forgiveness of another's sin, even if it means forgiving a person seven times a day. Now most of us, probably not unlike the disciples, will tend to be pretty skeptical of a person's repentance if after the fourth or fifth time the same day they have committed the same sin and have repeatedly repented and asked for forgiveness, they then commit it again. Our tendency will be to be rather unconvicted, and probably pretty unforgiving. However, Jesus' warning and admonition, "you must forgive," is very compelling. It is out of this dilemma that the disciples asked Jesus to, "increase our faith." We can hear the disciples thinking, "How can we believe in this person's repentance again when they have already violated our trust four or five times today? I don't have that much faith in this person's repentance, in my ability to forgive again, or in the power of forgiveness to bring about conversion in this person. If you want me to forgive this way, then you must increase my faith." In response, Jesus points out to them that the power of faith is not based on the quantity of our faith but the quality. Whether it is accepting the reality of our own repentance and forgiveness after multiple failures, or accepting the repentance of another and granting them forgiveness after their multiple failures, it requires quality faith to believe that Jesus died for all sin, and that his forgiveness is without limit. When we refuse to forgive, either our own sinfulness or another's, we deny the reality of forgiveness. We basically confirm that repentance will go unrewarded, due to our lack of faith to fully forgive and trust in the power of redemption. Humanly speaking this kind of sacrificial forgiving of numerous and oft repeated sins may occasion within us feelings of martyrdom and self-righteousness. After all, look how many times we have had to be merciful. Jesus anticipating this natural human response explains that a servant, when he has done his job, should not incur a sore arm by patting himself on the back. He has, after all, only done what was expected of him. The point for his disciples, and for us, is that we are servants of Christ. As his servants, the responsibility to carry the message of forgiveness and mercy to others is what he expects from us. After all, that is the essence of the Good News and of our Savior's purpose; forgiveness and redemption. So when we find an occasion to respond to someone's profession of repentance, it isn't our job to examine and analyze the sincerity of the repentance, but to find it in our heart to forgive once again. Offering that forgiveness freely to those we encounter is our job, our role, and our responsibility. It is what being a Christian servant of Christ is all about. Fr. Henri Nouwen, in explaining the discipline of confession, also helps us understand the spiritual chemistry of forgiveness; "Confession and forgiveness are precisely the disciplines by which spiritualization and carnality can be avoided and true incarnation lived. Through confession, the dark powers are taken out of their carnal isolation, brought into the light, and made visible to the community. Through forgiveness they are disarmed and dispelled and a new integration between body and spirit is made possible." (From In the Name of Jesus) So along with praying for God to increase our faith, we should also pray that God will enable us to do our duty and exercise our faith by being forgiving—always.
