OCTOBER 13TH 2019

The Twenty-Eighth Sunday in Ordinary Time

Growing as Disciples of Jesus, Making Disciples for Jesus

OCTOBER IS RESPECT LIFE MONTH What the Church Teaches

The Church has consistently taught that every human life is precious and worthy of protection. Every intentional abortion is gravely wrong. In April 2018, Pope Francis wrote: "Our defense of the innocent unborn...needs to be clear, firm and passionate, for at stake is the dignity of a human life, which is always sacred and demands love for each person, regardless of his or her stage of development."

The Church does not approach difficult pregnancy decisions with a false "either/or" mentality, pitting mother against child. For example, a baby conceived in rape is not an aggressor deserving death by abortion. She is innocent, like her mother.

They both deserve compassionate care and support, not more violence. Abortion doesn't bring healing or peace, but both can be found in the courageous decision to give birth to the baby.

Today, many babies diagnosed prenatally with a disability are aborted. Frightened parents, unsure of their ability to care for such a child, can trust that God gave them this child for a reason. Parents raising children with disabilities often write about the unexpected joys and transformative effect on their families.

Even when the disabilities are so severe that the baby is likely to die before or soon after birth, "many parents who carried their children to term say that protecting their baby and honoring his or her natural life, no matter how brief, was profoundly healing."

Very rarely, continuing a pregnancy may put a mother's life at risk—for example, because of a tubal pregnancy or aggressive uterine cancer. It is morally licit to remove the threat to the mother's life by removing the cancerous uterus of the fallopian tube where the child implanted, even though it is foreseeable that the child will die as an indirect and unintended result of surgery. But abortion—a direct and intentional taking of a child's life—is never morally permissible.

St. Monica, patron of mothers, pray for us!

Reflecting On Sunday's Readings

Those who have contracted a serious illness or who have undergone a difficult operation recognize that during the recuperation process they had to not only recover physically but also cope emotionally and spiritually. For when ill health confronts us it is not uncommon for our thoughts to turn inward questioning God's love in allowing the medical condition. Quite often people search within asking, "Why me?" endeavoring to ascertain what sin they have committed that warrants such punishment. Naturally praying for God's intervention, they often question their own lack of faith when they do not receive the answers they expected. So, in the face of physical debilitation, emotional and spiritual debilitation often comes as well. Sometimes these latter illnesses provide more and longer lasting difficulty than does the former. In this week's Gospel reading Jesus encounters ten lepers who were in need of healing. Ten lepers were cleansed, or cured, of their leprosy, but only one was healed. When the ten cried out "Jesus, Master, have mercy on us," they were aware of their physical need to stop the decay and rotting of their flesh, and to restore the vibrancy to their body, which Jesus did. Whether it was because of the disease alone, or the social ostracism that came with leprosy, most of the ten seemed oblivious to the weightier sickness of their soul. Who knows, perhaps the emotional and spiritual sickness of the soul, the estrangement of their heart from God, was present long before they contracted leprosy. In any case, they cared enough for their physical well being to ask Jesus for mercy. Their lack of praise and thanks to God after being cleansed of their leprosy reflects that their emotional and spiritual healing was not complete. So though ten were cured, nine went away to be pronounced clear of leprosy, but they were oblivious to their leprosy of soul. Only one, a Samaritan, was fully healed, body, mind and soul. When he recognized that his leprosy was gone he also recognized that this was a miracle and a gift from God. He could proceed no further in the cleansing process without turning back to Jesus to offer praise and thanks to God with a loud and exuberant voice. His emotional and spiritual healing was manifest by his faith, and his faith was manifest by his thanksgiving and praise. He not only was cured, but he also was healed, through-and-through. This side of heaven we have no assurance that God will always cure us, but we can be fully confident that he will always heal us, if necessary even in the midst of our illness. Spiritually and emotionally, through faith in Jesus, we are able to thrive even as our outer shell perishes. Perhaps Saint Pope John Paul II in his latter years of ill health better illustrated this truth than anyone in my lifetime. The best time and place to discover this healing faith is not after ill health has invaded our bodies but during the times of wellbeing. As Saint Paul suggests, we need to constantly "rekindle the gift of God" that we have received, and not allow our faith to remain dormant during times of wellbeing. Saint Elizabeth Seton encouraged this practice. Early in her faith as a Catholic Christian she wrote, "We must pray literally without ceasing—without ceasing; in every occurrence and employment of our lives." In writing to one of her children she encouraged, "You know I mean that prayer of the heart which is independent of place or situation, or which is, rather, a habit of lifting up the heart to God, as in a constant communication with him. ... in every disappointment, great or small, let your dear heart fly direct to him, your dear Savior, throwing yourself in his arms for refuge against every pain and sorrow. He never will leave you or forsake you." (The Soul of Elizabeth Seton by J.I. Dirvin) We cannot expect to thank and praise God in the dark, if we do not thank and praise him in the light.
