The Twenty-Ninth Sunday in Ordinary Time

Growing as Disciples of Jesus, Making Disciples for Jesus

St. Anthony Mary Claret October 24

The well-liked Spanish priest Anthony Claret was the fifth of eleven children. His family was poor but hard working. Weaving was a family trade. Anthony's earliest memories of home were the family's praying the rosary and going to church. From this environment grew his deep love and devotion to Jesus and Mary.

By age twenty-one Anthony had been educated and was in much demand for his skill as a weaver. At one time he suffered because of poor health, and during the days of recovery he imagined himself as a Carthusian monk. Anthony went to the bishop for advice. The bishop suggested that he first go to the diocesan seminary and then, if he wished, leave and become a monk. Anthony followed this advice and enjoyed seminary life. He was ordained two years earlier than usual because of a civil war in Spain.

Anthony finally realized that his health would prevent him from being a monk or a Jesuit missionary. He was sent to a small mountain village where he studied medicine and helped many sick people. He discovered his power to read hearts and his ability to understand people.

Anthony began a busy schedule of preaching throughout Spain. His gentle faith and great courage in spreading devotion to the Immaculate Heart of Mary and in reviving devotion to the Eucharist made him a popular preacher. He also published a catechism that led the bishop of Canary Island to invite him to preach there for a year, fulfilling Anthony's dream to be a missionary.

When Anthony returned to Spain, he founded a congregation called the Missionary Sons of the Immaculate Heart of Mary (Claretians). Then was assigned as archbishop of Cuba. Not having had an archbishop for fourteen years, the island was in need of renewal. Anthony reorganized the seminary training, preached in all the churches, heard confessions, and guided the people to Christ. He worked for updated farm methods and credit unions. He wanted the people to own their own farms, knowing that this would improve family life. He made enemies by teaching black slaves. Fifteen times people tried to assassinate him. Once a man stabbed him and was given a death sentence, but Anthony had this changed to a prison sentence.

After eight years, Anthony was called to Spain to be Queen Isabella II's confessor. He obeyed unhappily. He and the queen agreed that he would not live at the palace, but come only to hear her confession and instruct the children. This freed him to open a religious publishing house and write more than two hundred books and pamphlets.

In 1886 a revolution took place, and those associated with the court were accused of treason. Anthony fled to Rome where Vatican Council I was in session. There he defended the infallibility of the pope. Then he returned to a Cistercian monastery in France where he stayed in solitude until his death.

St. Anthony Claret is the patron of weavers and savings banks.

Please help us support our local food pantry. There is a basket in the back of church to drop off non-perishable food items.

Reflecting On Sunday's Readings

We observe an amazing victory in this week's first reading, as Israel "mowed down" the Amalekites in battle. To what should we contribute this profound victory, if not to prayer? Moses stood throughout the battle with his arms lifted up holding the rod of God. When Moses lowered his arms due to weariness the battle shifted against Israel, and when he raised them Joshua and Israel's army prevailed. Two men, Hur and Aaron came to Moses' assistance and joined him in his appeal to God by helping to hold up his arms until the victory was won. Since the earliest of times praying with hands lifted up to God was the accepted posture of prayer. With arms and hands lifted to God we can ascribe to him the praise and glory that is due his name or we can appeal for his power and participation in our lives. Can there be any better visual representation of prayer than Moses lifting his arms with the rod of God appealing for help. Can there be any better visual representation of the power of prayer than to see this ebb and flow of victory wrought by Moses' appeal? We are challenged by Jesus' words that we "ought always to pray and not lose heart." (Luke 18:1) Tertullian in his treatise On Prayer explains why we should pray and not become weary and faint in our hearts. "Prayer is the one thing that can conquer God. Christ has willed that it should work no evil. And has given it all power over good. Its only art is to call back the soul of the dead from the very journey into death, to give strength to the weak, to heal the sick, to exorcise the possessed, to open prison cells, to free the innocent from their chains. Prayer cleanses from sin, drives away temptations, stamps out persecutions, comforts the faint-hearted, gives new strength to the courageous, brings travelers safely home, calms the waves, confounds robbers, feeds the poor, overrules the rich, lifts up the fallen, supports those who are falling, sustains those who stand firm. ... What more need be said on the duty of prayer? Even the Lord himself prayed. To him be honor and power forever and ever. Amen."* It is no wonder that Jesus talked, and taught so much about prayer with his disciples. It is the most powerful discipline we have at our disposal for invoking the power of God. In this week's Gospel reading Jesus teaches a valuable aspect of prayer, the one Moses illustrated—persist, don't give up, don't ever give up when you believe you are praying according to God's will. We need to learn this lesson and learn it well. For when we begin to pray for things that are dear to our heart, and which we believe are dear to the heart of God, it is easy to become discouraged if we do not receive an immediate answer. But we should continue to cry out to the Father in prayer, day and night. Who knows but whether he will hear and answer us in the affirmative? When we quit praying, we are making the decision for God that the things about which we are praying are not really important enough for him to respond. Or our failure to persist in prayer can be our judgment against God that he either doesn't care for us enough to answer, or that he is impotent to do anything about it. Of course, if through his Word, through the enlightenment of the Holy Spirit, or through the counsel of holy people we become convinced that we are not praying according to the Father's will, then we should stop. Another lesson from Moses' experience is that it is important to have companions who will prevail with us in prayer when we are spiritually weary and are about to give up. The help and encouragement Aaron and Hur gave Moses is not unlike that which spiritual companions can give us when they decide to share the burden of praying for God's will in a situation. However, Aaron and Hur did not simply happen upon the scene. They were part of Moses' team and had a relationship and commitment with him for some time. This points up the importance of being in community with a small band of fellow believers with whom we are growing and sharing our lives. These are the ones who will rally to our aid when we are weary, and prevail with us in prayer. It is important to develop these types of relationships and commitments now when they may not be needed, so that when they are needed, they are available. We must also realize that it is important for us to be this type of a committed companion for others also.
