The Baptism of the Lord

Growing as Disciples of Jesus, Making Disciples for Jesus

The Baptism of the Lord January 12th

Our starting point in faith, in life is from a place of unconditional love and acceptance by our God, who “shows partiality.” Not a bad way to begin. So why do we forget that? Why do we always seem to think we are too broken, too difficult, too scarred to be loved by God for who we are? Somehow we imagine God will love us only after we're fixed, forgetting that the only way out is through.

As we close out the Christmas season and head back into Ordinary Time, we are called to carry with us was we began these past few weeks, but it's not so easy or simple. The special seasons call us to shift our focus onto God, but everyday life can get in the way of that. It overwhelms us and tells us to do too many things at once, to fill up the pauses with things that seem more productive. We know better now.

The pauses are where life with God begins. Like the rests in a symphony that keep the music from becoming a mish-mash of sound, the pauses shape our days and our journey, if we're willing to be counter-cultural.

As we move away from the glow of the holiday season back toward life in the “real” world, without the tinsel and ribbons, it can be easy to backslide to our pre-Advent attitudes, rushing without pausing, working without resting, talking without listening. As you go through your days, try to check in with God at least twice a day—once upon waking and once before sleeping. It doesn't have to take long, it doesn't even have to have words. Just breathe in and out and let the Spirit do the rest.

NOTE OF THANKS

Dear Friends, I hope you all had a wonderful celebration of Christmas and New Year. I thank all the Faithful of the three parishes for your wishes, love and prayers in person and through greeting cards with your generous gifts. I remembered and prayed for you and your families in a special way on Christmas and New Year's Day masses. May God who loved us infinitely in His Mercy and became one among us, bless abundantly and guide you all in this New Year 2020. Do continue to pray for me. Once again I thank you so much for your love and concern that you have for me. I am so grateful to you all. God Bless you all.

Yours lovingly in Christ,
Fr. Anthony Chendumalli

NOTICE ALL PARISHIONERS

Please join us on Wednesday, January 29th, 7:00 p.m. at the Annunciation Cigna Center, Frankfort to hear Joe & his daughter share their story. All are welcome. Joe and Amy Karlin and their kids reside in Lenexa. The Karlins are active in their church, schools, sports, and the community. They were the typical "family next door" until November 5, 2011; it was on that day that their oldest son and brother, Tom, took his own life. The action took the family, friends and the community completely by surprise. Tom's action compelled the family action. They established the Tom Karlin Foundation to bring awareness to teen depression and prevent teen suicides. The mission of the Tom Karlin Foundation is to "Improve the Quality of Teens' Lives and reduce Teen Suicides through Education and Awareness regarding Depression, Mental Health, and Suicide Prevention." The Foundation's motto – Talk, Listen, ACT – and its call for attention and action is shared with teens, teachers, and parents in a variety of venues and avenues. Joe and his wife, Amy, are parents to three other children, all now in college. Joe is a bank consultant and owns several small businesses. Joe serves on the Lenexa City Council, is a Board member on the C.H.A.S.E. initiative for Autism education and awareness, and was formerly a member of the United Community Services of Johnson County's Drug and Alcohol Council. More information can be found on the Foundation's Facebook page; the Foundation can be reached at tomkfoundation@gmail.com.

MARRIAGE MINUTE We often confuse humility with humiliation. To humiliate someone means to injure their self-respect or to make them feel ashamed. Humility, on the other hand, is simply regarding ourselves honestly, and it is necessary for a happy marriage! When we lack humility, we tend to cut ourselves down or puff ourselves up, or both. We become defensive, argumentative and unforgiving. In this weekend's readings, both John and Jesus show great humility through Baptism. They know exactly who they are, and therefore they can accomplish their missions. Put humility to work in your marriage, which is your primary mission! • Ask forgiveness • Recognize that you and your spouse both have valuable opinions • Ask God for an honest view of your own strengths and weaknesses • Focus on your spouse's strengths, entrusting his/her weaknesses to the Holy Spirit To grow together in this virtue, attend www.archkck.org/livinginlove on Feb 16-17 at KU in Lawrence.

Reflecting On Sunday's Readings

The Baptism of our Lord was made newly visible to me through an icon at a retreat in Mount Angel Abbey in Oregon, the icon showed a loincloth clad Jesus being helped by an angel into a flowing stream, surrounded by the faces of humanity. With one foot on the bank and the other submerged well into the stream the icon depicted Jesus' willingness to enter into our humanity and identify with us in our need. Imagine, he who knew no sin allowed himself to be numbered among sinners, among those who responded to John's call for confession of, and repentance from their sins. During this act of humiliation and solidarity with humanity the Father testifies about his Son and anoints him as the Lamb of God who takes away the sin of the world. The Catechism explains, "The messianic consecration reveals his divine mission, for the name 'Christ' implies 'he who anointed,' and 'the very anointing with which he was anointed.' The one who anointed is the Father, the one who was anointed is the Son, and he was anointed with the Spirit who is the anointing." Thus, in this baptismal event his earthly ministry as the Messiah was inaugurated. His baptism was a twofold witness, first the witness of Jesus testifying of those he came to save, and secondly by the Father testifying that Jesus was in fact the Savior. The Lord's baptism, like his incarnation and crucifixion definitively answers for all time the question of the Father's love for us. For in each of these salvation events, the incarnation, baptism, and crucifixion, Jesus identifies with us in our stained humanity. In each instance as Jesus identifies with us the Father reaffirms that he is "well pleased" with Jesus, for he knows that Jesus is making possible that which has been impossible. "So, it happened not only that the Lord was being baptized—he also was making new the old creation. He was bringing the alienated under the scepter of adoption. For straight-way 'the heavens were opened to him.' A reconciliation took place between the visible and the invisible. The celestial orders were filled with joy, the diseases of the earth healed, secret things made known, those at enmity restored to amity. ... So, when the Holy Spirit descended in the form of a dove and the Father's voice spread everywhere, it was fitting that 'the gates of heaven should be lifted up.'" (Hippolytus in "The Discourse on the Holy Theophany," from Ancient Christian Commentary on Scripture, Vol. II.) As we worship and reflect together on the Baptism of the Lord, we should take hope and receive challenge. Our hope rests in the witness of the Father, and of the Scriptures that Jesus has fully entered into our humanity and into our spiritual dilemma. The book of Hebrews says that he was "tempted as we are, yet without sin." As we slog our way through the muck and mire of life it is easy to get discouraged not only with our own sinfulness and disobedience but also with that of the world around us. How easy it would be to choose to give up, or to wallow in guilt and discouragement at our spiritual and practical shortcomings. But the baptism of our Lord should give us hope that by entering into our humanity he also understands our battles. Hebrews encourages us that Jesus is "a high priest, who is able to sympathize with our weaknesses," and encourages us to "then with confidence draw near to the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy and find grace to help in time of need." Where does his humility and obedience in baptism leave us? How are we to identify with him? In what ways does his mission now rest on us who are his body? Jesus later refers to his death on the cross as a baptism with which he is to be baptized. Does not our gratitude for his identification with us both in the baptism of water and the baptism of the cross demand our identification with him in life and mission? We should be challenged by the grace which Jesus' humility bestows on us to also willingly identify with others in their humanity by bestowing his grace on them.
