DEAR PARISHIONERS,*New Parish Office Sign:

When Rome was an extensive empire it served as the center of all human activity including religion, arts, science, trade, education and engineering. Associated with the Roman Empire was an old adage that said, "All roads lead to Rome." The truth of the matter is the fact the Romans did, indeed, build a system of ancient highways as well as aqua ducts to and from the eternal city. However, the significance of this saying had an underlying nuance that meant everyone who was anyone knew where Rome was located and they also knew the path to get there was clear.

We believe the Resurrection parish office is the center of all activities in regards to the life of the parish. However, as has been made evident through numerous inquiries, many people don't know where the office is located. I have taken a number of calls for appointments and had to explain how to get to the parish office. I can only imagine how many times our staff, especially our secretary, Mary Jo, has had to offer guidance including having people look for the big brown mailbox out front of the main door.

Now, thanks to the planning and hard work of the Buildings and Grounds committee (in particular, Sam Bechen, Don Rausch, and Mark Jobgen) with the assistance of Tim McAndrew (our maintenance supervisor) and Portzen Construction we have a new and beautiful sign that points our visitors in the right direction to our parish office.

Part of hospitality and the role of being a welcoming community includes giving clear and concise directions of where to go so their various needs can be addressed. We owe a debt of gratitude to these hard working and generous volunteers mentioned above. If you get a chance, thank them personally.

Virtual Festival/Silent Auction and Raffle:

Continuing on the theme of "offering directions" it is imperative we do the same as it concerns our 54th annual but very first virtual festival. It is frustrating enough we are not able to gather in person for a fun filled festival in our school and on the lower level parking lot. It would be much more frustrating if we were not given enough direction on how to participate electronically over the internet. Many thanks to those volunteers who have the tech savvy to show us the way.

There are a number of ways to get connected to this upcoming festival. Please avail yourselves to join us for the live stream virtual festival and silent auction. Simply get on our website Res-Dbq.org and find the festival slider on the top of the page which will guide you in the right direction. And visit the silent auction platform at festival20.givesmart.com to find out how you can offer a donation and see what items are featured. You can also sign up to be a bidder and participate in that fashion.

Please don't call me to ask for my directions on the computer. It would be like the blind leading the blind. If you are like me, sometimes I get flustered with computer stuff which is frustrating because it is not my primary way of communicating and participating. It is then I have to seek the guidance of someone younger and more adept with computers and social media. Let me tell you, there is nothing more humbling than receiving direction from a teenager. For that reason alone, if not for any other, please make your participation of the virtual festival a family event with your kids and grandkids.

So, on Sunday, August 16th grab a bucket of chicken and starting at 1pm, with those greasy fingers, log on and laugh along with us at the parish festival. Happy chicken feasting and happy parish festing!

Fr. Phil Gibbs, Pastor
