

From the Superintendent to families and teachers:

In consultation with the Archbishop, and in line with Governor Kate Brown's announcement today, Catholic schools in the Archdiocese of Portland will continue providing distance learning to our students until the end of the school year.

As all of our schools continue to be engaged in distance learning, I am ever impressed with the care and concern shown for our students and families. I ask for your continued collaboration as families and teachers adjust to routines and expand on best practices for distance and online learning. We have learned so much from one another, and want to continue to provide an excellent education within a Catholic world view.

We continue to be inspired by one another and through the light of Christ!

Have a blessed Holy Week and Easter!

Jeannie Ray-Timoney, Ed.D.
