

California has become the fifth state in the U.S. to choose this "slippery slope" approach to end-of-life issues. This insightful editorial in the America Magazine points out that there are numerous unintended (or intended?) consequences to this unfortunate decision.

<http://americamagazine.org/issue/euthanasia-california>