ALYSE LO BIANCO

Originally from California, Alyse moved to the East Coast over 30 years ago to be the White House Liaison for Mrs. Reagan's Foster Grandparent Program. In the '80's, she worked in protocol for the Los Angeles Olympic Organizing Committee and went on to successfully teach and franchise a course in etiquette. Before moving back east, she authored Miss Best's Etiquette for Young People. In 1993, she married Joseph A. Muldoon, Jr. and moved to Gone Away Farm where she began breeding and showing hunter/jumper horses, while enjoying a modeling career in print and runway.

In March of 2008, Alyse's husband and stepfather died of cancer within a day of each other. She and her daughter, Lanah Fitzgerald, opened Briarley Hill Retreat, a Christian retreat center located on her scenic 86-acre horse farm just outside of Washington, D.C.

During that time, she authored the book: Meditations From Your Abba Father, a daily devotional of her encounters with God. In 2013, Alyse met the actor Tony Lo Bianco, and they were married in 2 years later. Tony and Alyse divide their time between New York and Maryland.

Alyse received her college degree from Southern Adventist University and besides being an author and licensed Biblical Counselor, she manages her horse farm, manages Tony's schedule and appearances.
