

MRS. LYNCH'S WEEKLY MASS ANNOUNCEMENT

Christmas is a week from today.

It is a time of hope, a new beginning, the coming of our Savior, bringing light to darkness.

This Christmas has come at the end of a year which none of us will ever forget.

We have witnessed the bravery and hard work of so many, who have made sure that our society has continued to function.

Let us pray, and be thankful for, our medical professionals, our first responders, our religious, our teachers and staff, all those who strive and take risks to ensure we have what we need, and all those who care for, and take care of, all of us.

They share our values and we can learn a great deal from them.

During your well-earned break, be thankful and careful. We will be looking forward to seeing all of you in the new year.

Merry Christmas...
