Sunday's Reflections
2 Corinthians 8:7, 9, 13-15

STRAPPED FOR CASH

Every pastor eventually asks for contributions, and Saint Paul was no exception. He had lived several years in Corinth, a city with an advantageous location, right on the isthmus that joined the upper and lower parts of Greece. There Paul founded a Christian community. Later, he sent letters to help the people grow in faith. He criticized the factions that were forming. He explained how to celebrate the eucharist.

And he asked for money. Other Christian communities were not as well off as the Corinthians. It wasn't fair. The first Christians shared what they owned within these small communities. Paul saw a bigger picture. Just as people cared for one another within these groups, they should share among the groups as well.

"As a matter of equality," Paul appealed to the Corinthians, "your abundance at the present time should supply their needs." Paul had them imagine the tables reversed: "Their abundance may also supply your needs." Paul envisions a Church where those who had much "did not have more," and those who had little "did not have less."

From time to time we are asked to support the needy in other places. They may be within our own diocese, the nation, or the world. When we have the opportunity to share from our abundance, we are fulfilling a command that goes all the way back to Paul. "As you excel in every respect, may you excel in this gracious act also."
