Dear Brothers and Sisters in Christ,

This week we consider the line of the creed where we profess Jesus Christ to be, “begotten not made, consubstantial with the Father.” The historical circumstances of this line will highlight its importance, which, in turn, explains the rational behind the recent re-translation of this line. This line was composed during the first Council of Nicaea. The Council was convoked in 325 by the Emperor Constantine, whose recent legal recognition of Christianity ended a centuries-long period of persecution of the Church, and opened up the possibility for a period of tranquility within the Church. That, however, did not happen. While doctrinal disputes had arisen in the past, something much more devastating to the unity of the Church was developing in Egypt. There, a certain priest named Arius found himself at odds with St. Alexander, Bishop of Alexandria. Arius, teaching the supremacy of God the Father, began to teach that the Son, though God, was not equal with the Father. Most importantly, he would state that, “there was a time in which the Son was not,” meaning that the Son was not co-eternal with the Father, but a created being. Yes, he was extraordinarily powerful and glorious—a god, but not God, who he held to only be God, the Father. He pointed towards Scripture and tradition to reason out his position, and a large number of people began to believe in this teaching. St. Alexander, in an attempt to correct this erroneous view, gathered bishops in Egypt to condemn Arius and his teachings. This only led to further disagreement. And so, the Emperor Constantine, wishing to create peace by putting this disagreement to rest, called upon the bishops of the world to gather and come to a decision about what they believed. It is during this meeting, this Ecumenical Council, which took place at Nicaea, that the first half of the Creed was written, accepted, and professed.

One of the most important figures to guide the theological reflection of the Council was St. Athanasius, one of St. Alexander's deacons, who would eventually succeed him as Bishop of Alexandria. Athanasius vehemently opposed Arius, and would spend the rest of his life writing against different heretical teachings, causing him significant difficulty, including being exiled five times from his diocese, to the point that he became known as Athanasius Contra Mundum (Athanasius Against the World). It was he who suggested that the bishops include the line from the Creed that we are considering today. For it is precisely in the word “consubstantial” or “same substance” that the Church professes something that contradicts Arius and his teachings. If the Son is the same substance as the Father, then the Son is co-eternal and not a creature. He is most definitely the same God as God the Father, though a different Divine Person. And that is precisely what the Council Fathers professed, condemning Arius' position in the process. Let us mention a few other noteworthy points about this moment in history: it highlights the importance of Ecumenical Councils in the life of the Church, it shows the importance of theologically precise language, and the need for faith to develop in continuity with the past, it shows one of the ways in which the Spirit “leads us to all truth,” it shows that while we are Scriptural in our belief, we are not fundamentalists (the word “consubstantial” is not in the Bible). Finally, it shows us the importance of “sentire cum ecclesia,” that is “to think with the Church,” as St. Ignatius would put it many years later. That is to say, our personal theological and spiritual dispositions should always be located within the sphere of what the Church holds, teaches, and believes.

Perhaps you remember when we started to use the new translation of the Creed a few years ago. Perhaps the word “consubstantial” seemed foreign or distant at that time. Hopefully, through this short reflection, we can appreciate a little better this gift of St. Athanasius, and the glorious truth about the Son that it expresses.

In Christ,
fr. Jason

fr. Jason’s Question Corner

Have a question about our faith?
There’s a lot to know, and a richness to our traditions and teachings.

Sometimes we find ourselves wondering about these things. I would like to start a small section in the bulletin where each week I answer one or two questions that parishioners have about the Catholic faith.

So feel free to submit your questions, and I’ll get to work researching the answers!

Let’s learn together!

Check the website to submit your questions!

I was asked about the presence of first-class relics in the altars here at our parish. Such relics are pieces of the bodies of canonized saints. In the early years of the Church, particularly in Rome, Christianity was illegal. Not being able to worship publicly, our ancestors went to the catacombs: underground burial sites. Catacombs of the martyrs were of particular importance. There is much to say about how this helped solidify belief in the communion of saints, but for now we note that the practice of putting relics in our altars developed from there.

For many centuries, up until 1983, it was required that all altars have relics. When Canon Law changed in 1983 that requirement was removed. Our main altar in the church does have relics, whose I do not know. I am told that people tried to find paperwork in the past, but came up empty-handed. It is possible that the paperwork is contained in the same space where the relics are, but that is sealed with mortar. No other altars on our property contain relics. However, the altar at the West Gilgo Beach chapel does have relics. Similar to our main altar, I have no documentation, and the relic stone is properly sealed with mortar. Did you know about the practice of putting relics in altars? Let’s take a moment this week to reflect on the important role the saints play in our lives,

Are All the Children In?

Author Unknown

I think of times as the night draws nigh
Of an old house on the hill,
Of a yard all wide and blossom-starred
Where the children played at will.

And when deep night at last came down,
Hushing the merry din,
Mother would look all around and ask,
“Are all the children in?”

‘Tis many and many a year since then,
And the old house on the hill
No longer echoes childish feet
And the yard is still, so still.

But I see it all as the shadows creep,
And tho’ many the years have been
Since then, I can hear my mother ask,
“Are all the children in?”

I wonder if, when those shadows fall
On the last short earthly day,
When we say good-bye to the world outside,
All tired of our childish play.

When we meet the Lover of boys and girls
Who died to save them from sin,
Will we hear Him ask as Mother did,
“Are all the children in?”

Reflections

“A GRACE ONCE RECEIVED IS A GRACE NOW GIVEN”

Joseph Guido, O. P.

Surely, we have had occasion to share in someone’s abundance: it might have been a portion of an entrée, a huge bowl of popcorn, or (a staple of my youth) a keg of beer. It is intrinsic to most good people to share a portion of their plenty. Here at St. Joseph we see it vividly in the St. Vincent de Paul Society, Outreach, and the Thrift Shop. Other ministries, too, do their best to share with others the fruits they have been able to accumulate.

So sharing is a simple concept, though one I considered limited to temporal matters. It is not.

Recently, I was at a day of reflection and was introduced to a variation of this theme. It was the contention of the gifted presenter that Grace is meant to be given to others. At first, I did not get it. For as long as I can remember, I have been a big believer in Grace. I have continually prayed for Grace for myself and for others. More importantly, I have received Grace and know God has bestowed Grace on those for whom I pray. I never knew, however, I could pass this Grace along.

Just as being offered that piece of steak, handful of popcorn, or cup of beer, we can also advance some of the positive opportunities (God’s Grace) which come our way to others. Think of it in the context of healing. There are times when we are collectively wounded by some action, word, or inaction. When we receive God’s Grace to figure out how we can be healed, we must then help those around us do the same…this is sharing God’s Grace.

We are blessed in many ways…let us be open to pass these blessings along to others.

St. Joseph’s Parish Outreach is getting ready for our summer programs. Back to School Program, is one of them and will be held this year on August 20th.
Children need constant encouragement and support to succeed, and as a community we can help make that happen. Sending a child to school with new and needed supplies instills a sense of pride along with message that school is important. New school supplies can be expensive and unaffordable to a family with limited income. St Joseph “Back to School Program” helps with their supplies that families are unable to provide.
If you are able to help a child, you can either donate supplies or buy a gift card from Target, CVS, Walmart, also you can sponsor a child in need. To sponsor a child call Sigrid to 631- 669-0068 ext 202. School supplies can be dropped off at the Outreach Center, Monday, Wednesday and Thursday from 9:30 to 3:00. You may also drop off your supplies at the Parish Center office.

Listed below are the school supplies that children need:

| New Backpacks | Double pocket file folders |
| Binder and subject dividers for binders | Loose left paper |
| Glue Sticks & Bottle Glue | 3 X 5 Index Cards |
| #2 pencils -Pens red/blue/black | Composition books |
| Glue Sticks & Bottle Glue | Washable markers/Crayons |

De los que asistieron el concilio, San Atanasio, un diácono de San Alejandro que iba a suceder a él como obispo de Alejandría, era lo más importante. San Atanasio se opuso a Arrio firmemente, y iba a pasar toda su vida escribiendo contra las herejías. Esto hizo que San Atanasio tuvo una vida dura; cinco veces fue exiliado de su país y le se llamaban “Athanasius Contra Mundum,” es decir: Atanasio contra el mundo. Fue él que sugirió a los obispos que ellos pongan “de la misma naturaleza del Padre” en el Credo. Porque con estas palabras profesamos algo que es contrario a Arrio y sus enseñanzas. Si el Hijo es de la misma naturaleza del Padre, el Hijo es eterno como el Padre, y no es una criatura. Definitivamente es el mismo Dios como Dios el Padre, aunque sea una diferente Persona Divina. Los Padres del concilio estuvieron de acuerdo con San Atanasio y profesaron sus palabras y condenaron a Arrio.

Para concluir, notemos unos puntos importantes del este momento en la historia de la Iglesia. Vemos la importancia de los Concilios Ecuménicos en la vida de la Iglesia, vemos la importancia de usar palabras teológicas con precisión, vemos que la doctrina desarrolla en la continuidad con el pasado, vemos como el Espíritu Santo nos guía a toda la verdad, vemos que aunque la tradición, y la razón y mucha gente creyeron su doctrina, esta Concilio Ecuménico, que estuvo en Nicea, el primer mitad del Credo fue hecho, aceptado, y profesado.

En Cristo,
