My good deed for the week was: Lucy volunteered at the soup kitchen in Brentwood and made hundreds of PBJ sandwiches and she helped set up and clean up, Jessica does cheer and dance and she’s getting all A’s in school (she works hard to do her best), Dominic let his sister hang out in the fort he made even after she kept destroying it, Riley helped a friend with Science, Christopher helped his sister with reading, Emma, Thomas & Jordan cleaned their playrooms, Owen helped his friend feel better when his dog died, Melanie helped at the senior court baby shower for the Catholic Daughters and she helped deliver gifts to someone’s house, Hyacinth packed rice, beans and oil for people in Haiti, Sean gave his brother some candy and Bretton took care of the dog when his parents went on vacation.

Deacon’s Corner

A FAITH THAT CAN NOT BE IGNORED

I do not know if flavor can be restored to salt, but I do know that lamps can be taken out from under baskets and put on stands. If there is one thing we Christians ought to be, it is conspicuous. Not because we look strange or act silly, but because we live differently. In a world that is motivated by greed, a generous man is going to be noticed. In a world that so consumed by hatred, a person of good will is hard to overlook.

That is what Jesus meant when he said, “a city set on a hill can not be hidden.” His church is to be different, distinctive, standing out from the landscape, like a gleaming city in the middle of the night.

Jesus was saying to his followers, be noticed. They should be happy and joyful people. Certainly, Jesus was that. In fact, he was so radiant; he found so much joy in life that some people resented it. They doubted his sincerity, because they found it hard to believe a religious man could be that happy.

I am convinced that one simple thing which would help the church a great deal would be for more of us to learn how to smile. There is something utterly inconsistent about a sour Christian. The world will pay little heed to long faced religion and will seldom if ever be attracted to it.

I think Jesus was talking about a kind of religion that makes people strong. Light is strong: darkness can never overcome it. We live in a world that is in trouble. There is economic uncertainty. There are diminishing natural resources. We seem to be running out of clean air and water and sufficient food and many other major problems. There is the constant threat of war, illness and poverty.

If we stay true to the principles of our Lord, there will be times when the world will hate us, but it can never ignore us. And there will be those within the world who will be drawn to us, Jesus said it like this. “Your light must shine before others so that they may see goodness in your deeds and give praise to your heavenly Father”.

PEACE BE WITH YOU

Deacon Mike

Reflections

CHANGING MY STRIDE

We are often plagued within inner conflict. Actually, the choice between good and evil is really simple, at least in terms of identifying which is which. A more complicated challenge is the choice between two goods.

After my amputation, I decided my best course of action was to be as independent as possible. Outside of taking advantage of prime parking opportunities (except when I go to Mass), I always avoided any help offered to me. I had witnessed the comfortable life others in my situation seemed to enjoy, though I saw no delight in such a routine. While I had no intentions of competing in a marathon, climbing a mountain, or joining a weekend cycling club, I did want my gait to me as normal as possible and resisted the offers of well meaning people to make life easier for me.

Fortunately, I was traveling one day with John Devine, my very accomplished AK amputee friend. When we arrived at the airport, he immediately asked for a wheelchair. I continued to walk by his side. He chided me for my reluctance to follow his lead. It worked. When next I flew, I used a walker at the airport and found it quickened my pace, eased my luggage situation, and got me on the plane faster. It was a baby step.

With my vanity being slowly chipped away, I was soon able to see the negative effects of being The Independent Man. I fortunately realized each time I rejected an offer of assistance; I was negating the opportunity for someone to do exactly what Jesus called us to do: to love one another. I was so consumed with my “I can do it alone” approach, that I was hurting others. I have always prided myself on opening doors for others, but never let anyone open one for me. Not good.

It is always good to be a doer. Sometimes it’s good to be a do-ee.
