Do you play a musical instrument? Please sign-up.

- To bring smiles to the hearts of God's most vulnerable: little girls.
- To foster a sense of worthiness, we're sending hope.
- For relief, but to also plant the seeds of worthiness, in Malawi, a simple idea was born to not only offer them a chance at a good education, but to also help them avoid the dangers of child labor.
- In the red dirt, traffickers are less likely to snatch little girls for slavery if the girls are well clothed.
- "Imagine if the girls in the community had their own dresses, we're sending hope." Human trafficking doesn't have to be an inevitable part of the cycle. With the Pillow Case Dress project, we are combating modern day slavery. By sending something so simple as a pillow case dress, we can offer hope and relief to a vulnerable child in a place where it may be needed most.

Pastor’s Corner

Dear fellow members of St. Denis and Our Lady of the Wayside,

I am sure that we all have painful memories of being corrected during our growing up years. Those painful memories are because those corrections were an expression of anger, control, impatience or dislike. The correction was never done out of love. That is why we still carry resentment to what happened. In the Gospel reading of today, Jesus is telling us that if we correct someone, we should do it with love. This is especially true when it comes to dealing with young people. We should never correct another if it is not done with love.

I would like to thank all the volunteers who came for the reception on Saturday, August 30. Thank you! I would like to thank all those who helped prepare the reception and in a special way Dede Masters, Lindsey West and Susan Flax. My thanks I would like to extend to all those who stayed back to clean up after the reception. Thank you!

Yours sincerely,
Fr. Jose Shaji

Gospel Reading

Jesus said to his disciples: “If your brother sins against you, go and tell him his fault between you and him alone. If he listens to you, you have won over your brother. If he does not listen, take one or two others along with you, so that ‘every fact may be established on the testimony of two or three witnesses.’ If he refuses to listen to them, tell the church. If he refuses to listen even to the church, then treat him as you would a Gentile or a tax collector. Amen, I say to you, whatever you bind on earth shall be bound in heaven, and whatever you loose on earth shall be loosed in heaven. Again, amen, I say to you, if two of you agree on earth about anything for which they are to pray, it shall be granted to them by my heavenly Father. For where two or three are gathered together in my name, there am I in the midst of them.”

September 13 - The ambiguity and intrigue surrounding John, the great preacher (his name means "golden-mouthed") from Antioch, are characteristic of the life of any great man in a capital city. Brought to Constantinople after a dozen years of priestly service in Syria, John found himself the reluctant victim of an imperial ruse to make him bishop in the greatest city of the empire. Ascetic, unimposing but dignified, and troubled by stomach ailments from his desert days as a monk, John became a bishop under the cloud of imperial politics. If his body was weak, his tongue was powerful. The content of his sermons, his exegesis of Scripture, were never without a point. Sometimes the point stung the high and mighty. Some sermons lasted up to two hours. His lifestyle at the imperial court was very modest. His zeal led him to decisive action. Bishops who bribed their way into office were deposed. Many of his sermons called for concrete steps to share wealth with the poor. The rich did not appreciate hearing this message. When it came to justice and charity, John acknowledged no double standards. Aloof, energetic, outspoken, especially when he became excited in the pulpit, John was a sure target for criticism. His actions taken against unworthy bishops in Asia Minor were viewed by other ecclesiastics as a greedy, uncanonical extension of his authority. Theophilus, archbishop of Alexandria, and Empress Eudoxia were determined to discredit John. Theophilus took occasion to charge John with fostering heresy. Theophilus and other angered bishops were supported by Eudoxia. The empress resented his sermons contrasting gospel values with the excesses of imperial court life. And finally she did manage to have John exiled. He died in exile in 407.

Please pray for the repose of Stephen Bellumori who died recently.
There will be a memorial Mass on Wednesday, September 10, 1:00 pm at St. Denis Church.
