Pastor’s Corner

Dear Beloved Parishioners,

Good to go. These words were instilled in me by Marine Corp drill instructor Staff Sargent Sears when I did my basic training for the navy in Newport, Rhode Island. Throughout my service in the military, we were constantly told to be good to go. Without a moments notice, we could be shipped off to war. We always had to be ready to go. When 9/11 happened, I received orders to go to the Middle East, specifically Bahrain then to Kuwait near the border of Iraq. My life was literally turned upside down. I went from being a parish priest to being on the front line in an instant. What happened to me is what happened to Abram in the first reading.

God ordered Abram to leave the land of his kinsfolk to go to a foreign land he was unfamiliar with. His life was turned upside down as well. It is quite a scary thing to face and experience the unknown, and to not be in control of one's life. That is how life is for a person of faith. God calls us forth, and orders us to go where he wants us to go. As Christians, we are challenged to be always ready to serve the Lord. Even as a priest, I still have to be good to go. As a servant of the Lord, I willingly put my life in his hands. I am charged to go where God wants and needs me to go. His will not mine be done.

If we are open to God's good to go orders, then good things can and will happen. Abram's openness to God's command of good to go led to receiving an abundance of God's blessings. Abram's descendants became as numerous as the stars in the sky. This was the very best blessing Abram could have ever received from God. I feel extremely blessed by God myself. Look at where I am today, here as your pastor. Be faithful to God and he will bless you. During this season of Lent, let us always be good to go.

Fr. Paul

What We Believe

My Deepest Me Is God

I own a very colorful copy of a poster by brother Mickey O’Neill McGrath that illustrates a quote from St. Catherine of Genoa that says’ “My deepest me is God.” Somehow that quote seems to resonate when thinking about the Transfiguration. When Jesus takes his special friends up the mountain, he reveals who he really is: past, present, and future. When Jesus reveals his true self, he also reveals what we are called to be.

The profound recognition of self is a lifelong journey. As Joan Chittister states, “This innermost self is the raw material of our spirituality. In our deepest we know the best and the weakest of our spiritual selves.” While some of our desires can slow down the process of seeking God within our selves, the disappointments and struggles can help us to realize just how close our loving God really is. If we tune in, we can realize that all our lives God is calling us to a divine unity. As Joan states, “The depth of our love for the unlovable, the proof of our mercy for the weak, the endurance of our compassion for the suffering, our pursuit of justice for others,--that is the sign of God’s presence in us.”

As we climb the mountains in our own lives let us seek to go deeper into ourselves to find the God who is ever seeking us.

Spend time together as a family during Lent and help to spread joy and love to those served by the St. Vincent de Paul Society. There are two projects to choose from:

THRIFT STORE VOLUNTEERS – volunteer your time at the St. Vincent de Paul Thrift Store in Redwood City on March 18, March 28 or April 7.

Please find the sign-up sheet in the back of the church. You will be contacted about training and orientation. Great for young people ages 8-17, when accompanied by parents.

Symbolism of Lent

Look around the church this season. You’ll see lots of purple and the desert. Purple is the color of sorrow and repentance, and reminds us to examine our consciences and be sorry for our sins. The desert is where we join Jesus, confronting our temptations and focusing on our relationship with God, without distractions. The Holy Water has been removed too, as a sign of our desert experience, but it will return with the blessing of new water during the Easter Vigil celebration.
