

Terry Lensing

I was an altar server for a few years. I also was the trainer for new servers. One day I was training a new boy on how to light the charcoal for the sanctifier by holding a piece with a pair of tongs and setting a match to it. He got the charcoal nice and grey, but then the 3:00 bell rang for the end of the school day so we needed to hurry back to the school. He put the charcoal back into the original box, not realizing it would continue to burn. After school let out, we saw smoke coming from the chapel window. We had burned the table. Nuns were not happy. That was my last day of training.
