TIM McCORMICK • Lector

Raised in Grosse Pointe Park, Tim McCormick began his basketball career at St. Clare of Montefalco playing for the Falcons (#12) in 1972, 1973 and 1974. He attended Clarkston High School and University of Michigan (1980-84) where he was second-team Parade All-American. He went on to play in the NBA for ten seasons as a member of the Seattle Supersonics, Philadelphia 76ers, New Jersey

Nets, Houston Rockets, Atlanta Hawks and New York Knicks. He averaged 8.3 points and 4.9 rebounds per game. Following his NBA career, Tim went on to work with ESPN as a color analyst and an in-studio analyst for Fox Sports Detroit and the Detroit Pistons. He runs the NBA Players Association TOP 100 Basketball Camp for the elite 100 high school players. He is also the author of the book Never Be Average. Tim and his wife Michelle live in West Bloomfield with their two children.

TREVOR THOMPSON • Lector

A native of Dresden, Ontario, Fox Sports Detroit Broadcaster and four time Emmy Award winner, Trevor Thompson, has become as much a celebrity in the Motor City as most of the athletes he covers in his Detroit Red Wing and Detroit Tiger reports and commentaries. Before joining Fox Sports in 2000, Trevor worked for TSN in Toronto and for Orca Bay Sports in Vancouver where he covered the Vancouver Grizzlies and Vancouver Canucks. In 2014, Trevor earned Detroit Sports Media's Ty Tyson Award for Excellence in Sports Broadcasting. He then went on to serve DSM as its President from 2016 through 2019. Married to WJR morning reporter and Today's Woman co-host, Dayna Clark, Trevor and Dayna reside in Farmington Hills.
