When Jennifer Ruiz moved to Victoria with her husband, Kevin, and children, she was looking to make connections like the ones she found in her Houston area parish, St. Edith Stein. There, she was part of a mother’s group that met regularly and helped support one another on their journeys as moms.

“There were just there for each other; it was just beautiful,” she said. “The women there just started deepening my faith.”

She found herself missing the Houston mother’s group and asking herself, “How do you make friends at this age?” She and Kevin own Goodwin Personnel and have five children ages 11, 8, 6, 3 and 16 months. And number six is on the way.

Ruiz called the rectory at Our Lady of Victory and asked if there was a mother’s group. There was not one at the time and she asked if she could start one.

Jenny Vincent, pastoral associate for OLV, remembers that call and said, “I told her, ‘I think that’s a wonderful idea.’”

Vincent had to meet with the Rev. Gary Janak, then-pastor, and get the green light. While they were all praying about it, other moms began to ask about mother’s groups. “The need was obvious,” Vincent said.

Ruiz was given the green light to organize a mom’s group and Mothers of Grace was born in 2016. It has about 30 members who

Dear Brothers and Sisters,

St. Bernard of Clairvaux wrote the following words in reflecting upon Mary as Stella Maris, Star of the Sea:

“In danger; in distress, in doubt, reflect upon Mary, call upon Mary. Let her not leave your lips, let her not leave your heart and do not abandon your dealings with her if you wish to gain the object of your prayer. Following her, you will not stray; praying to her, you will not despair; reflecting upon her, you will not go wrong. With her taking your hand, you will not fall down; with her protecting you, you will not fear; with her leading you, you will not grow weary…”

(In Praise of the Virgin Mary).

In this month in which we honor Mary with our traditional May crownings, devotions and prayers, many of us can reflect upon times when we have called upon her for help and our prayers were answered.

The Christian tradition of praying for Mary’s guidance goes back well before St. Bernard wrote his inspiring, heart-felt words in the 1100s. Mary continues to guide her children through the storms and trials of life, leading us with the light of her Son.

The beautiful image of the Star of the Sea reminds us that we are never alone. This past year has been especially challenging in that the circumstances of life made many of us feel alone and isolated. I remember well last year at this time when I felt helpless in the midst of so many conflicting messages beyond my control. In the middle of all of that, I felt that I could look to the Star and pray for hope. Even in the midst of suffering and death, the prayer of the rosary gently reminds us that Jesus lived to teach us that those who believe in Him “will never die” (John 11:26).

Mary, our Mother and Star of the Sea, offers comfort to each one of us as her child. The words Stella Maris signify, too, the international Catholic ministry among people of the sea.

On May 20, I will be offering a prayer for the U.S. Department of Transportation’s Maritime Day in which we as a nation “recognize the hard-working men and women of the U.S. Merchant Marine and the maritime industry for the vital services they provide in support of our nation’s economic well-being and national security.”

That evening, the Stella Maris ministry in the United States will offer a prayer service with the special intention for all women and men who serve on the seas.

Turning our hearts to Mary, our heavenly mother, leads us also to honor our earthly mothers and the special women who have given us hope and healing. May each of your families have a blessed and holy Mother’s Day, and may we always honor all of the women who have passed on to us the gift of life; let’s keep each other in prayer!

+Brendan

#SolidaritywithSeafarers

What does Pope Francis say about maritime workers?

- Without seafarers, the global economy would come to a stand still
- Without fishermen, many parts of the world would starve
- We must listen to the spiritual & material concerns of seafarers and fishermen

Seafarers are key essential workers too!

Shepherdless, we are easy prey

EDITOR’S NOTE: The following sermon was written for the fourth Sunday of Easter, Cycle A and titled “The Good Shepherd.”

We all like to be independent. Little children like to play with scissors and matches when their mothers aren’t watching. Older children look forward to being liberated from the control of their parents. Teenagers rebel and defy authority. Employees resent being checked up on at work. The elderly who can no longer live alone refuse to go to the nursing home.

A school principal told me that he once had to escort a young man off the school campus during a basketball game and later found his tire slashed.

An elderly patient once told me that if her doctor told her once more that she should go to the old folks home, she would tell him, “You go.”

St. Augustine said that in his earlier days he had enjoyed stealing apples from his neighbor’s tree. He did not even like apples. He fed them to the hogs. The only reason he took them was that they were forbidden.

We all want to be independent – some of us more so than others. But not everyone can handle it equally well.

And so the world is full of people who visit psychiatrists, marriage counselors, lawyers, astrologists, gurus, and what have you, looking for guidance. Sometimes wives even ask help from their husbands.

I once told a group of teenagers who were visiting a patient that they seemed so mature and so self-confident, but to my surprise, they were quick to tell me that they actually felt unsure of themselves and quite insecure. And a young man told me that the growing responsibility he was facing made him plenty scared.

The fact is that everyone has a good reason to feel insufficient. No one can know it all and no one can be competent in everything, and this is where Jesus the Good Shepherd fits into the schedule.

A teacher once asked her class this question: “If there were 10 sheep in a pen and one got out, how many would be left?” A little boy answered, “None,” and the teacher said, “Son, you don’t know arithmetic,” and the boy replied, “Teacher, you don’t know sheep.”

There are two things that every shepherd or sheep raiser knows about sheep. One is that they easily go astray and the other is that they do not know how to protect themselves from their enemies.

My dad used to raise sheep and I remember how when there was a hole somewhere in the fence, one of the sheep would find it and get out, and then the whole flock would follow it and go astray. One night stray dogs attacked the flock and left them bleeding and dying because they had no one to defend them.

We are all like those sheep. We tend to go easily astray. We have many enemies, especially the evil spirits, who can and will destroy us if no one helps us.

If you are young, don’t worry about what your friends think of you when you refuse to let them bring out the worst in you. They may ridicule you, but they will respect you, and when they are in trouble and need someone to talk to, they will come to YOU.

If you are a parent, of course, strive to get along well with your spouse; build a strong marriage and a strong family life. Don’t be afraid to make firm rules for your children. Back up the teachers in maintaining school discipline.

At your job or around town, don’t be afraid to take a stand where right or wrong are concerned. There are still plenty of good souls who will join you in the fight.

So … what if we ARE like sheep? We need not go astray and we need not let our enemies destroy us. In all our efforts, Jesus the Good Shepherd will guide us and protect us and will come looking for us when we are lost. “The Lord is my shepherd, I shall not want.”

Lord Jesus, thank you for being a shepherd to sheep like us. Help us to accept guidance and discipline whenever we may need it. Grant that, in the end, we may all be found with you, where we will stray and be in danger no more. Amen.
May reflections lift our gaze heavenward

We may not realize it but we are experiencing a glorious time. In the Church we are still celebrating Jesus’ resurrection, which brings so much joy and hope to all Christendom.

Whenever I spend time reflecting on this reality, I remember an incident that occurred during a student discussion on the topic of Jesus’ ordeal, which He suffered in order to bring about our salvation. A young man asked, “Wouldn’t it be horrible for someone to have an awful life, such as life-long pain, a severe crippling condition, or some other terrible livelihood and no hope of a happy afterlife in Heaven?”

The question sparked a profound reaction in the group. I know that I have often thought about the significance of the events of Holy Week and Jesus’ Resurrection in light of that discussion. Sometimes we can get so caught up in the routine of daily life, that the significance of what we’re celebrating gets lost.

There is so much happening in our Church celebrations to sustain our faith life. Our Holy Father has declared a year in which we celebrate St. Joseph, a quiet man who was so faithful in carrying out his duty as a devoted spouse and parent – a real model for all of us.

Then our Holy Father has designated this year as The Year of the Family. The Holy Spirit is really active! The diocese is in the midst of a year in which we focus on the family. Let us continue to be open to respond to the grace and growth realized through participation in our own families.

At the same time, we continue to open our spiritual eyes through participation in devotions to Mary, our Mother, as we celebrate activities that honor her during the month of May.

Let us not forget Mothers’ Day when we celebrate our own mothers who have, and continue to, reflect God’s love to us. Also, let us continue to participate in the special events observed in the Liturgical Year: Ascension, Pentecost, the Feast of the Holy Trinity, and Corpus Christi (The Most Holy Body and Blood of Christ); all events which can direct our focus toward God.

It seems that even our environment about us reminds us to lift our hearts and minds heavenward, as we surround ourselves with the beautiful foliage of new and revived vegetation. Also, I think that all of us are relieved and thank God for vaccines and those who have developed them.

Let us continue to rejoice in our status as redeemed persons through the resurrection of Christ and carry this awareness through the events that sustain our spiritual life.
Blue Sunday celebrated

VICTORIA – Bishop Brendan Cahill, right, reads from a card with a prayer for victims of abuse during the Blue Sunday Mass on April 25. He also recognized all people of the diocese who work in the Safe Environment program instituted to train all workers on how to recognize and report abuse of any type. Many wore T-shirts acknowledging April as Child Abuse Prevention Month or blue clothing.

A Prayer for Healing Victims of Abuse

Holy Spirit, comforter of hearts, heal your people’s wounds, and transform brokenness into wholeness. Grant us the courage and wisdom, humility and grace, to act with justice. Breathe wisdom into our prayers and labors. Grant that all harmed by abuse may find peace in justice. We ask this through Christ our Lord, Amen.

Msgr. Arnold “Buzz” Anders passes away on Easter Sunday

Msgr. Arnold “Buzz” Anthony Anders, the longest serving priest in the Diocese of Victoria, went to his eternal reward on Easter Sunday, April 4, 2021. Father Anders, as he preferred to be called, was born in Dubina, Texas, on Dec. 11, 1926, to Frank and Annie Guenther Anders.

Upon completion of his studies at St. John’s Seminary in San Antonio, he was ordained on May 27, 1950 in San Fernando Cathedral by the Most Rev. Robert Lucey for the Archdiocese of San Antonio. He had to receive a special dispensation to be ordained at the age of 23, which was given to him by Pope Pius XII. The minimum age is 24 to be ordained. He later received his master’s degree in education from Our Lady of the Lake University in San Antonio.

His assignments in the Archdiocese of San Antonio included The Shrine of St. Anthony of Padua, St. Peter, Prince of the Apostles, Our Lady of Sorrows and St. Dominic’s and St. Michael the Archangel in Weimar. With the formation of the Victoria diocese, he was assigned to St. Mary’s in Victoria (twice), St. Mary’s in Nada, St. Andrew’s in Hillje-Louise, St. Robert’s Bellarmine in El Campo and The Church of the Immaculate Conception in Goliad where he also ministered to four early Texas Missions, namely Charco, Bercclair, Fannin and La Bahia. His last pastoral assignment was in Ganado at the Church of The Assumption of the Blessed Virgin Mary. After his retirement, he moved down south to serve as chaplain to the Carmelite Sisters of the Divine Heart of Jesus. He spent 20 years ministering to the Sisters, the residents of Mount Carmel Assistant Living Home and helping in churches throughout the Diocese of Corpus Christi, making lifelong friends along the way. Mt. Carmel Home closed its doors in 2017. Father Anders returned to San Antonio to live at Padua Place where he reconnected with many old friends and fellow priests.

Father Anders enjoyed traveling the world, his travels included all six continents and miles that would circle the world three times. His favorite place to visit was the Holy Land, which he visited three times. He studied one summer there, and on another trip he took part in the “Via Dolorosa” (Way of the Cross) in Jerusalem. He also studied in Rome at the Pontifical North America College, where he met then-Pope John Paul II, now St. John Paul.

Father Anders is preceded in death by his parents, Frank and Annie, sisters, Margaret and husband Bernard Hartensteiner, Leona and husband Tony Garza; brothers, Arthur and wife Sophie, Frank and wife Leona, and John; nephews, David Hartensteiner and Michael Anders; great-nephews, Thomas W. Anders and Henry Anthony Anders; great-niece, Mary Louise Adams; and great-great-nephew, Dyrk Burcie. He is survived by his sister-in-law, Adelle Anders, wife of John and 24 nieces and nephews and many great-nieces and great-nephews, and lifelong friends from all over.

We would like to thank the Sisters of Missionary Servants of St. Anthony and Padua Place staff who dedicate their lives to taking the absolute best care of our retired priests. They treated Father Anders with love, gentleness and compassion for the three years he lived there.

The funeral took place Thursday, April 15, at St. Michael the Archangel Catholic Church in Weimer. The rite of final committal took place at Sts. Cyril and Methodius Catholic Cemetery in Dubina after the funeral.

In lieu of flowers, please make donations to Seminary Education Fund, Diocese of Victoria, P.O. Box 4070, Victoria, TX, 77903; or Padua Place, 80 Peter Baque Rd., San Antonio, TX 78209.

No matter how you feel about how immigration is being handled, the reality is that there are thousands of children who have crossed the border without their parents and who need help. Sister Laura Toman and Sister Marian Sturm of the Incarnate Word and Blessed Sacrament will be going to McAllen May 6-20 to work with the immigrants. And Sister Rosario Resendez is volunteering with the youth at the Freeman Center in San Antonio. “I’m excited,” Sister Laura said. She had planned to go and work with immigrants a while back, but discovered she had cancer and was too ill to travel. She started working instead at Promise Pointe in Victoria that helps provide housing for the underprivileged. But she got a second chance when Sister Marian, who had gone down there to work before and when planning this trip asked Sister Laura to go along. “She knew I wanted to go in that direction,” Sister Laura said.

They will be working with Sister Normal Pimentel, director of Catholic Charities of the Rio Grande Valley who was made famous when she was named one of the 100 most influential people in the U.S. by Time magazine. “My love is children,” Sister Laura said. Some of the scenes and stories of the immigrant children’s plight have touched her heart and moved her to tears. “I just want to do something,” she said. “We have to help the poor. We have to help the immigrants. I just feel like if I could done one small thing, I want to do it.”

Before she started her first shift at the Freeman Center in San Antonio, Sister Rosario said, “I’m super excited about it.” Though she works full time as the assistant to Bishop Brendan Cahill, she said there was no barrier to her going. Everyone from whom she sought approval said, “Yes, go!” Sister Rosario has already put in a shift at the Freeman Center, overseeing groups of boys ages 13-17. She said the experience was good. Because she’s bilingual, she was able to communicate with the children and help translate for English speakers who are there helping.

She said the boys were very polite, and were drawn to her because she is a religious Sister. There are actually other religious Sisters helping, but Sister Rosario wears the veil and is more recognizable as a religious Sister. “They were so happy to be with me,” she said.

Sister Rosario said the children are treated very well there and have a good attitude toward one another as they wait for family members to come and pick them up. “When a family comes to pick them up, the whole dorm cheers,” she said.

Sister Rosario is planning to take whatever shifts she can handle for the time the children are in San Antonio, she said.
When it comes to living your faith, it can be as simple as getting dressed each day. I learned that when a promotion for Meghan Ashley’s blog landed in my email inbox.

Though I get thousands of Catholic tidbits in my e-mail, many of which are spiked because one person could not possibly read all of it, this one caught my attention.

Meghan Ashley Sabo Sokolowski’s business is fashion, but she has made fashion a form of glorifying God instead of our own bodies. She’s even written a book, “The Catholic Wardrobe.”

I began to read her fashion blog. She presents very pretty and modest clothing. But she will sometimes suggest blue for a Marian feast day and explain why the Mother of God is usually depicted draped in blue cloth. She noted that in any reported apparition of the Blessed Virgin “she (Mary) is intentional with what she wears.”

There is simple and elegant jewelry Meghan can recommend to remind such as rosary rings, which are beautiful and remind us to pray. With each recommendation, Meghan scouts out examples of merchandise on the internet and share in her blog.

Originally from California, Meghan said she got a degree in theology and then went into the fashion industry doing design illustrations. She ended up working as a personal stylist and found her passion.

She said her husband, who works for a Catholic charity, suggested that her own styling business target Catholic women.

“I had this ‘How do I do that? feeling,’” she said. But she figured it all out and has run with it.

She said people will be “wowed” by a beautiful scapular as an accessory, and she can show them how to dress stylishly without being immodest.

“A big part of it is the mentality of getting dressed,” she said. “It’s about dignity and respect for God.”

She also said the consequences of dressing well is a better mood and more positive attitude. “Once you just dress appropriately for the day, it removes the stress.”

Meghan said her favorite part of being a fashion consultant is one-on-one interaction with women who seek her help. “Because they feel so good afterward.”

To keep her focus on her mission, she said she tries to have a very consistent prayer life and routine.

And how does she like to dress? She told me that she’s 80 percent classic with a “peek of fun,” like a simple garment with just a touch of fur or ruffles.

As someone who really hates shopping for clothes, I have found her suggestions very practical and budget-friendly and really kind of fun to read. You can look her up, too, at www.meghanashleystyling.com if for no other reason to discover how this woman has made the wardrobe another way to remind us that we are God’s children.
One of the most notable things about the ordination of Auxiliary Bishop Gary Janak of the Archdiocese of San Antonio is how much his family was a part of the celebration. His family was present and acknowledged at every event leading up to the ordination on April 20.

His mother, Rose Marie, sister, Sharon Foltyn, brother, Allan Janak, along with in-laws, nieces and nephews and great nieces and nephews were able to attend the vespers, receptions and the ordination. And prayers were offered for his sister, Cindy Junek, who is in the hospital at M.D. Anderson, and unable to attend.

Several times Archbishop Gustavo Garcia-Siller addressed Bishop Janak’s mother, assuring her that he would be well cared for in the archdiocese. After vespers on the evening before the ordination ceremony, his family was able to see the new bishop’s new home at the Assumption Seminary.

Many people from the Diocese of Victoria, who have been a family to him throughout his priesthood, also attended the celebration, including many of his brother priests from the DOV.

Bishop Brendan Cahill was a co-consecrator at the ordination Mass. He also spoke of his time with Janak’s family.

Ordination of Bishop Janak a testament to the family

Retired Bishop David Fellhauer brought special gifts to the ordination. Bishop Janak said the new ring and pectoral cross ordered for him had not arrived in time for the vespers during which they were to be blessed, but Bishop David Fellhauer gifted him with a pectoral cross that he received as a gift from Pope John Paul II during an ad limina visit in Rome. It was particularly special for Janak since he had served at a Mass that St. John Paul II had during a visit to San Antonio. Fellhauer also presented him with a ring that was a replica of the ones given to bishops during Vatican Council II. The ring originally belonged to the late Bishop Charles Grahmann, first bishop of the Diocese of Victoria, and the man who presided at Janak’s ordination as a priest for the Diocese of Victoria in 1988.

There were 24 bishops – active and retired – attending the ordination including Bishop Emeritus David Fellhauer (left). Though many were from Texas, there was also a bishop from Matamoros, Mexico, and the Bishop of Memphis, Tenn. Cardinal Daniel DiNardo of the Archdiocese of Galveston-Houston also attended.

Bishop Gary Janak’s Family

John Michael Talbot, songwriter and long-time friend of Bishop Janak was present to perform “Holy Is His Name,” as a meditation before the ordination Mass. Bishop Janak thanked him not only for lending his voice and prayers to the ceremony but also for the influence Talbot’s ministry has had on shaping his priesthood.

‘Sorry’ to Victoria and Bishop Brendan, but I am happy to have him here.”
He has a genetic mitochondrial disease that prevents him from consuming food and drink orally, so he receives nutrition via feeding tube and has since infancy. The Church does not allow the Body of Christ to be given via feeding tube.

But on April 24, he received the Sacrament for the first time with the rest of his class at St. Anthony Catholic School. A fraction of the Host was dissolved in a small amount of distilled water which he was able to tolerate.

“I always knew that this was going to be a topic,” Jenna Crosby, his mother, said. “I have had a little anxiety about this.” Carson also had been anxious to the point that he was suggesting ways he might receive Communion. “He just kept apologizing for not being able to do it and for being the way he is,” Jenna said. “We didn’t want him to think that this was ever his fault.”

“The only way Carson could do Communion was to have a feed tube for nutrition, Carson, despite having a mitochondrial disease that prevents him from consuming food orally, is able to keep up with his peers.”

The family’s conversations have led to theological discussions that have worked to deepen their faith and his desire to receive the Eucharist.

“He really asks some tough questions about faith,” Jenna said.

After consulting with Christella Alvarez of the Office of Catechetical Ministry at the Diocese of Victoria, and, subsequently with Bishop Brendan Cahill, and with Charleen Katra, executive director of the National Catholic Partnership on Disability (NCPD), the solution of the dissolved Host was devised, and the Rev. Augustine A...

Carson and his classmate compare height while lining up for group photos after their First Communion at St. Anthony Catholic Church. Thanks to a feeding tube for nutrition, Carson, despite having a mitochondrial disease that prevents him from consuming food orally, he is able to keep up with his peers.

Carson is not the first or the last person to face this kind of challenge, and his experience brings to light just one way the Church can accommodate those who cannot participate in the Mass or the Sacraments the way others do.

“God will use him (Carson) to touch other people’s heart,” Katra said. “He’s exactly the way God intended him to be and we have to make sure his faith journey is as joyful as yours or mine.”

The organization Katra leads is dedicated to, among other things, training Catholic communities to help people with disabilities have meaningful participation in the Mass and the Sacraments.

Katra said people with different needs are often underrepresented in the pews and her office is working to change that. The NCPD does assessments and presentations in English and Spanish all across the country. It is not only physical needs that need to be met, but also helping people with autism and mental illness be fully included in the Church, she said.

Alvarez said the Guidelines for the Celebration of the Sacraments with Persons with Disabilities states: “Catholics who require nourishment through feeding tubes are encouraged to receive Holy Communion, as are all the Catholic faithful … the norm of receiving through the mouth remains the same for those who otherwise use a feeding tube for sustenance, and Holy Communion is not to be administered through a feeding tube.”

“Just as the Church must do all in its power to help ensure persons with disabilities a secure place in the human community, so it must reach out to welcome gratefully those who seek to participate in the ecclesial community.” — Pastoral Statement of US Catholic Bishops on Persons with Disabilities: Conference of Catholic Bishops, 1998

Alberto, pastor of St. Anthony Catholic Church, prepared for Carson ahead of time. It wasn’t only a solution for his First Communion, but is a sustainable solution for Carson and Father Augustine.

The organization Katra leads is dedicated to, among other things, training Catholic communities to help people with disabilities have meaningful participation in the Mass and the Sacraments.

Katra said people with different needs are often underrepresented in the pews and her office is working to change that. The NCPD does assessments and presentations in English and Spanish all across the country. It is not only physical needs that need to be met, but also helping people with autism and mental illness be fully included in the Church, she said.

Alvarez said the Guidelines for the Celebration of the Sacraments with Persons with Disabilities states: “Catholics who require nourishment through feeding tubes are encouraged to receive Holy Communion, as are all the Catholic faithful … the norm of receiving through the mouth remains the same for those who otherwise use a feeding tube for sustenance, and Holy Communion is not to be administered through a feeding tube.”

Alvarez said that was the critical point in trying to find a solution for Carson, and Katra, through her experience with another diocese, suggested the dissolved host.

Jenna said as they prepared for First Communion, Carson became less anxious and happy that he was able to receive Jesus in the Eucharist in a different way. But, she said, he is very empathetic and “in tune with things,” so there were also plenty of moments of apprehension for Carson and his family.

“There was a lot of digging and discussions,” Jenna said. “Carson is very smart and very aware of what’s going on. I didn’t want there to be ‘no’ for an answer.”

She said Alvarez worked with her on trying to figure out what the protocols were. “Nobody really knew,” she said.

After the April 24 Mass at St. Anthony, Carson said his experience was good. It was easy for him to consume the Precious Body as it was given to him. His prayer before bedtime on Saturday, Jenna said, was this: “I am thankful to Jesus that I was able to receive my first communion and change the way people like me can do communion and churches can bless the water for us to drink.”

Jenna said that, all things considered, she knows Carson is a special blessing and his story will bless others.

“His life has just been very different and is very different,” Jenna said. She said he is among many “special angels” who teach others to appreciate what they have. “My child has completely changed the trajectory of our lives. I am so much stronger in my faith.”

She also credits St. Anthony School for opening their arms to Carson and his needs. His mitochondrial disease means that he has to have an attendant with him at school to provide nutrition.

“Just really affects everything from head to toe,” Jenna said, explaining that the mitochondria are the “power house” of human cells and Carson’s work at 10-30 percent capacity. “Every time he is sick he could end up in the hospital because he has a weak immune system.”

Jenna attended St. Anthony as a child. She and her husband, Justin, lived in Katy previously and moved to the Eagle Lake area just in time for Carson to start school at St. Anthony.

“I just knew St. Anthony’s was the place that he would need to be,” she said. “St. Anthony’s has been super accepting of him. Carson has just thrived there.”

She also feels blessed that he has great doctors at Texas Children’s Hospital in Houston. “You look at him and you don’t think that there’s anything wrong with him. That’s all thanks to his feeding tube.”

Texas Senate OKs abortion bills

AUSTIN (CNS) – The Texas Catholic Conference of Bishops was “thrilled to report” the state Senate passed several pro-life bills supported by the conference, executive director Jennifer Allmon said March 31.

“These include our top priorities, the Chemical Abortion Safety Protocol, S.B. 394, and the Human Life Protection Act, S.B. 9. We have great hope that these bills, which provide further protections for women and unborn children, will become law,” she added in a message in the Texas Catholic Voice, the online news outlet of the Austin-based conference.

On March 30, the Texas Senate approved seven bills restricting access to abortion; one of the measures bans abortion if the U.S. Supreme Court ever overturns 1973’s Roe v. Wade decision legalizing abortion nationwide. Now the measures must be taken up by the Texas House of Representatives.

The approved bills are:
• Heartbeat Act, S.B. 8, bans abortions after the child’s heartbeat is detectable, which could be as early as six weeks of pregnancy. The bill has an exception for medical emergencies but not for rape or incest.
• Trigger Abortion Ban Act, S.B. 9, which would outlaw most abortions and would take effect if Roe is overturned. Texas would only abortions if the pregnancy threatens the mother’s life.
• Regulating Abortion-Inducing Drugs Act (or Chemical Abortion Safety Protocol), S.B. 394, would prohibit chemical or “pill-induced” abortions after seven weeks. The U.S. Food and Drug Administration’s guidelines approve the use of abortion pills up to 10 weeks. The bill also would ban people from receiving abortion medication by mail.
• Stop Taxpayer-Funding of Abortion Logistical Support Act, S.B. 650, would bar local city governments from funding “logistical support” for those seeking an abortion, such as money for child care, travel to or from an abortion provider, housing, food and counseling that may encourage a women to have an abortion.
• Every Mother Matters Act, S.B. 802, would require a third party under contract with Texas Health and Human Services to offer a consultation and inform a woman seeking an abortion of available resources before she undergoes the procedure.
• Preborn Non-Discrimination Act, S.B. 1173, would ban abortions “on the basis of race, ethnicity, sex, probability or confirmed diagnosis of Down syndrome, or probability or diagnosis of a disability.” It also would ban abortions in the third trimester of pregnancy unless there is a medical emergency.
• Texas Abolition Strategy Act, S.B. 1647 combines the provisions of S.B. 8 and S.B. 9.

Ahead of the votes, the Texas affiliate of the American Civil Liberties Union condemned the state Senate and Lt. Gov. Dan Patrick, who presides over the Senate, for considering the bills.

Patrick “continues to push his extreme agenda by forcing seven anti-abortion bills through the Texas Senate,” said Drucilla Tigner, policy and advocacy strategist for the ACLU of Texas, in a statement. “Most Texans believe abortion should be legal, yet Lt. Gov. Patrick has made banning abortion a top priority.”

Tigner said the Senate “should stop peddling” what she called Patrick’s “extreme agenda” and “instead focus on the real crises facing Texans.”

Pope urges Catholics to pray in May for end to Covid-19 pandemic

DEVIN WATKINS
Vatican News

Catholics across the globe are encouraged to dedicate the Marian month of May to praying for an end to the pandemic.

The initiative, behind which the Pope has thrown his support, involves 30 Marian Shrines from various parts of the world.

The Pontifical Council for Promoting the New Evangelization announced the news with a press release on Wednesday afternoon.

It takes place under the theme “The whole Church was fervently praying to God,” which recalls a verse in the Book of Acts (12:5).

Pope Francis will open the Marian month of prayer on May 1, with a Rosary broadcast across Vatican Media’s platforms.

Each day will see Vatican News broadcast the recitation of the Rosary at 6 p.m. Rome time from the various Shines taking part in the initiative.

The Pope will also close the initiative on May 31, with another specially-broadcast Rosary.

This year’s dedication of May to pandemic-related prayer recalls a similar occurrence during the first wave in March 2020.

Women’s conference exceeds expectations

VICTORIA — On Saturday, April 24, nearly 200 women participated in the first annual diocesan women’s gathering, where they celebrated Mass, participated in a Eucharistic Procession and heard presentations by Bishop Brendan Cahill, television personality Father Cedric Pisegna, CP, and author Janice Carleton. The primary theme of the conference was “Arise and live life in the Holy Spirit,” fully encountering God’s love and letting it transform us. More than 80 women filled out response cards indicating they would like to deepen their involvement with women’s ministry opportunities within the diocese. In March a similar men’s gathering took place and also helped spark more involvement in developing ministries. Both gatherings took place at the Cathedral Center of Our Lady of Victory Cathedral and included men and women from across the diocese. (Photos by Regina Janak/The Catholic Lighthouse)

Meetings for grieving parents

GANADO — Coping with the death of a child is very difficult. Parents are in a place they have never been before, often overwhelmed by the grief that follows. Grief does not end in a prescribed number of days, weeks, months or years. A group of parents who have suffered the loss of a child are having monthly meetings from 6:30 to 8 p.m. at Assumption of the Blessed Virgin Mary Catholic Church, 108 S. 6th Street, Ganado. Meetings include the opportunity to pray, listen to presentations by clergy and other parents who have lost a child, and meet others on the grief journey. Participants are not required to share anything, and may just remain silent and listen if they’d like. Registration is free online at www.victoriadiocese.org/ Upcoming meeting dates are May 11, June 8, July 13 and Aug. 10. Please also save the date for a weekend retreat Oct. 29-31 at the Spiritual Renewal Center in Victoria.

For daily and Sunday readings, as well as a daily reflection video, visit www.usccb.org/bible/readings.
Family event May 22 mixes faith with fun

One thing I’ve learned as a parent is that the faith needs to be fun for small children to stay interested and engaged. My wife does a great job reminding me of this, as I sometimes want to make sure the kids know the right things or pray the right way. She reminds me time and time again that they are kids, and need to be able to act like kids.

With that in mind, the diocese is hosting an Easter event for families with children of all ages from 9 a.m. to noon Saturday, May 22, at Holy Family in Victoria. It offers a chance to pray, play games, do a craft, and enjoy a picnic lunch with cake. The focus of the day will be on the significance of Jesus’ resurrection and there will be many kid-centric activities. I hope your loved ones can join us by registering at http://www.victoriadiocese.org/FIAT.

Thinking back, this lesson of fun and faith played out for me personally. Growing up, my family didn’t always attend Sunday Mass. We didn’t understand the importance. But my parents did put me in a Catholic school where I met priests and religious who could change my life. They genuinely cared about me, and the community was full of fun things to do. Because of this, I had great memories of the church.

When I entered college, I took a break from God by not going to Mass except on rare occasions. This left me broken, empty and confused. When I was at my lowest, it occurred to me that I should return to Mass. Had it not been for the great memories growing up, I would not have looked that way. But, because of the relationships from growing up around the church and the moments I could remember seeing that God was present, I turned back to Him.

Every child should look back on their time in the church and have fond memories. The church should be a place of love for them, where they know they can come when life gets hard. Hopefully they never take a break like I did. Life is best when we spend it with Jesus.

Make sure families, and especially children, feel welcome at church. Make sure they are having fun. This can come in the form of giving them a smile at Mass, complimenting their parents in the parking lot, and helping your parish to host events like upcoming diocesan Easter gathering. Together, we can all make the church a welcoming place for families and children, so they come to know the love God and always want to stay close to Him.

If you want information on how to start family-based activities at your parish, please give me a call or email me at 361-573-0828 x 2265 and jreyes@victoriadiocese.org. We have a whole playbook of events parishes can do that are fun and engaging for families with children.

Until next time, I hope this reflection is something you can discuss with your family. What are you doing to help the children have fun with the faith? Respond to Jesus’ command to “… Let the children come to me, and do not prevent them; for the kingdom of heaven belongs to such as these.” (Matthew 19:14)

Queridos hermanos y hermanas,

San Bernardo de Clairvaux escribió las siguientes palabras al reflexionar sobre María como Stella Maris, Estrella del Mar:

“En peligro; en la angustia, en la duda, reflexiona sobre María, llama a María. No dejes que ella abandoné tus labios, no dejes que abandoné tu corazón y no abandones tus tratos con ella si deseas ganar el objeto de tu oración. Siguiéndola, no te desviarás; rezándole, no desesperarás; reflexionándola sobre ella, no te equivocarás. Con ella tomando tu mano, no caerás; con ella protegiéndote, no temerás; con ella guiándote, no te cansarás…” (Alabanza a la Virgen María).

En este mes en el que honramos a María con nuestras tradicionales coronaciones de mayo, devociones y oraciones, muchos de nosotros podemos reflexionar sobre los momentos en que la hemos pedido ayuda y nuestras oraciones fueron respondidas.

La tradición cristiana de orar por la guía de María se remonta mucho antes de que San Bernardo escribiera sus inspiradoras y sentidas palabras en el siglo XII. María continúa guiando a sus hijos a través de las tormentas y pruebas de la vida, guiándonos con la luz de su Hijo.

La hermosa imagen de la estrella del mar nos recuerda que nunca estamos solos. El año pasado ha sido especialmente desafiante porque las circunstancias de la vida hicieron que muchos de nosotros nos sintiéramos solos y aislados. Recuerdo bien el año pasado en este momento cuando me sentí impotente en medio de tantos mensajes contradictorios fuera de mi control. En medio de todo eso, sentí que podía mirar a la Estrella y rezar por esperanza. Incluso en medio del sufrimiento y la muerte, la oración del rosario nos recuerda gentilmente que Jesús vivió para enseñarnos que los que creen en Él “no morirán jamás” (Juan 11:26).

María, nuestra Madre y Estrella del Mar, nos ofrece consuelo a cada uno de nosotros como su hijo. Las palabras Stella Maris también significan el ministerio católico internacional entre la gente del mar.

El 20 de mayo, ofreceré una oración por el Día Marítimo del Departamento de Transporte de EE. UU. En el que nosotros, como nación, “reconocemos a los hombres y mujeres trabajadores de la Marina Mercante de EE. UU. Y la industria marítima por los servicios vitales que brindan en apoyo del bienestar económico y la seguridad nacional de nuestra nación”.

Esa noche, el ministerio Stella Maris en los Estados Unidos ofrecerá un servicio de oración con la intención especial para todas las mujeres y hombres que sirven en los mares.

El volver nuestros corazones a María, nuestra Madre celestial, nos lleva también a honrar a nuestras madres terrenales y a las mujeres especiales que nos han dado esperanza y curación. Que cada una de vuestras familias tenga un bendito y santo Día de la Madre, y que siempre honremos a todas las mujeres que nos han transmitido el don de la vida; mantégamonos en oración!

Moms groups offer support and a little escape from the day-to-day come when they can. “That’s how I’ve met all my friends. It makes you feel so much more a part of the community,” Ruiz said.

The Mothers of Grace is not designed solely for moms from the OLV parish. There are women from other parishes and even other towns. They have had members who are not Catholic and some who have had no religious affiliation.

Different ages are welcome, too, though currently the mothers are all younger with small children.

Vincent said she attended one with a panel of more mature moms, calling themselves “Mothers of Grays,” so the younger moms could benefit from their wisdom and experience as mothers.

Ruiz said the group meets every other week, which seems to work best for their busy schedules and try to provide childcare when requested so moms are able to make it to the meetings. She encourages all moms to come at least once if they are curious or in need of support. “Once someone comes the first time, they’re going to know if it is for them,” she said.

Aftan Puente joined the group shortly after it was formed and said, “I was looking in the church bulletin and I thought this would be a nice way to get to meet more people. So I went.” Last year she did not attend because she went through the RCIA program and said the group has helped her faith grow. “It was eye-opening to see what is being done at home – the different things they do.” She said books and reflections have been shared that help her in creating the domestic church.

The groups May meetings are the 4th and the 18th, when Father Dalton Ervin will give a presentation on spiritual warfare.

Some moms groups have been around for a long time. The Confraternity of Christian Mothers Society 716 is a ministry of Sacred Heart in Hallettsville. The group got its start 110 years ago, according to Ana Henke, the group’s president.

According to a written history, the group was originally a German organization that met after the last Mass on Sundays to pray for one another – “for the grace to become better wives and mothers and to pray for their children.”

They adopted the English language in the 1930s.

Henke said she was looking for a group to join and was invited to come to the mother’s group. She said they enjoy many different age groups from new moms to grandmothers and serve as an outreach to expectant mothers and to people in nursing homes.

“We have a St. Gerard’s committee whose purpose is to educate all women to the dignity of motherhood, the joys and blessings attached by God to this condition of life, and to foster child welfare and provide mutual aid to the expectant mothers. Members with their first child are given a quilt, which is quilted by the committee,” according to a written profile of the group, provided by longtime member Barbara Grahmann. “Our Cheer and Sunshine Committee visits the sick, nursing home patients, and shut-ins. They also send get-well cards to our members and sympathy cards to members who have lost a loved one.”

Other projects sponsored or supported by the Christian Mothers include:
- First Communion Pins for the First Communicants of the parish since 1996.
- Church bulletin once a year.
- Radio broadcast of Sunday Mass once a year.
- Sacred Heart School Marathon donation
- Sacred Heart School Jr. High Scholarship Fund.
- Scholarship to a Sacred Heart and Hallettsville High School senior.
- A donation sent to the Phillipines for a needy family.

Henke said one of the most popular things they do is bunco night because it gives moms a chance to escape for a while and enjoy the fellowship of other women.

Also, they have interesting presenters from the community that allow them to stay informed on what is going on and what resources are available.

Karen Franz heads up the Confraternity of Christian Mothers at St. Joseph Catholic Church in Inez, which is a little different than the other groups. “Our purpose mainly is to pray for families,” she said.

Her group was more active when it began in 1980, but now they are more behind the scenes supporting important events at the church – like moms do. They are the ones who make the cakes and kolaches and such for the picnics and jump in wherever they can help.

They used to have regular, more formal, meetings when the group was bigger. “I think we met more after the meetings, if you know what I mean.” Again, the fellowship was the best part.

“It really helped, because the older ones were there to help us,” Franz said.

A Prayer in Gratitude for Our Mothers

Good and Gentle God,

we pray in gratitude for our mothers and for all the women of theory who have joined with you in the wonder of bringing forth new life. You who became human through a woman, grant to all mothers the courage they need to face the uncertain future that life with children always brings.

Give them the strength to live and to be loved in return, not perfectly, but humanly.

Give them the faithful support of husband, family and friends as they care for the physical and spiritual growth of their children.

Give them joy and delight in their children to sustain them through the trials of motherhood. Most of all, give them the wisdom to turn to you for help when they need it most.
