ST. KATHARINE DREXEL was born in Philadelphia in 1858, a child of a prominent and wealthy banker. She and her sisters received a wonderful education from private tutors and traveled throughout the United States and Europe. They were devout in their faith and prayed and practiced the spiritual and corporal works of mercy. Katharine took an avid interest in the well-being of blacks and native Americans. She began by donating money but realized more was necessary. She founded the Sisters of the Blessed Sacrament for Black and Native Americans, dedicating her life and fortune of $20 million to this work. Katharine opened the first mission school for Indians and many others for blacks in the south. She founded Xavier University in New Orleans, the first Catholic University in the United States for African-Americans.

Pope John Paul II canonized St. Katharine and she became only the 2nd recognized American born saint in 2000.
