Lent
First Sunday

The Desert,
A Place to Encounter God

Today, we recall the temptation of Jesus in the desert. He was among wild beasts.

The rawness of our nature stares at us directly in the face as Jesus stares down the natural inclinations of the flesh. At the same time, God is present in the angels ministering to him. Yes, there is sin in the world. The wild beasts are at our door but the way into our home has been sealed by divine covenant. With repentance and belief in the good news, this flood of transgressions will be taken away. This is the coming of the Kingdom, now at hand.

Today's Bulletin is in memory of
Betty Martinez sponsored by her family.

THE PROPOSED SOCIAL CENTER (see insert)

This is the initial plan we have been working on for some time now. The plan is to have a:

- covered pavilion for the auction
- storage barn attached to the pavilion
- stew and chicken frying kitchen
- regular kitchen
- dining area
- small multipurpose room for Bingo and other small events.

Hopefully, we will be able to move dirt next week to begin the project.

REFLECTION

Facing Temptation Aware of God's Presence

The Sacred authors encourage us to follow Jesus' lead and to regard the experience of temptation as a time and a place in which we meet and lean on God rather than a sort of jousting with Satan. While we cannot deny the existence of evil and the human tendency for instant gratification and self-aggrandizement so we cannot regard the experience of temptation as entirely negative.

The continuing struggle to choose between evil and good, between God and self, between self and others can be a graced and positive experience. To mention the forty days in reference to Jesus' temptation suggests that the presence and power of God was always with Jesus. He emerged from his struggle with temptation stronger and more given to the mission for which he was sent.

Encouraged by this we are encouraged to rely on God in our struggle and emerge from the experience more deeply aware of the presence of God in our thoughts, words and action.

Liturgical Orientation

First Sunday of Lent

The First Sunday of Lent is an invitation to see the whole season of Lent before us. All of Lent culminates in the Celebration of the Paschal Triduum (Three Days) of the Lord's Death and Resurrection. The good news is that we are usually aware of Lent as a time of preparation and sacrifice. The bad news is that sometimes the beginnings of Lent can be more about what I am giving up this year, than making it a celebration of God's renewed covenant, our conversion and the saving work of Christ, whose first steps after baptism began his paschal journey through the desert driven by the Spirit. There he confronted Satan and his temptations, the wild beasts of the desert. He empowers those who follow him to walk through baptism, on the way that leads to God, that they may arrive at eternal life and at the glory of his Resurrection.

This should lead us into thinking broadly about Lent and where we would like to be at the celebration of Easter. This challenge confronts us as individuals and as a parish. Ultimately, what does it mean for me to recognize God's covenant and renewal for me and my family?
