First Sunday After Pentecost
The Most Holy Trinity
Solemnity

Trinity Is Our Home

The Trinity, The Father, Son and Holy Spirit is the way we express our most fundamental relationships with God as well as God's relationships with us. We relate to God and God relates to us as Parent, as Son and friend, and as abiding loving Spirit. Therefore, when we reflect on the doctrine of the Trinity today, we can do so because the doctrine is already there, as a given aspect of our Christian experience and faith. It is through reflection on these gracious divine experiences that we can get a glimpse of who God is.

"I Am With You Always"

Often called the Great Commission, today's Gospel portrays the risen Jesus handing over his mission to his disciples. Under his auspices, they are sent forth to "make disciples" through a process that will include preaching, teaching, and welcoming in baptism all who believe.

Jesus sent forth disciples to baptize, wash and plunge believers into the name of Trinity. In so doing, each is also immersed in the bonds of family love that bind together not only the members of the Trinity but also the members of the church, the family of God.

With the final verse of today's Gospel, St. Matthew concludes his contribution to the Christian scriptures with an assurance that will forever be the source of all our hope: "I am with you always." Jesus makes this promise just as God repeatedly promised the people of Israel and their patriarchs and prophets, "Fear not, I am with you." At his birth, he was named God-with-us (Emmanuel). During his ministry, Jesus promised to be present to his own, even when as few as two or three are gathered together in prayer.

Through the centuries, believers have continued to appreciate the various modes of Jesus' presence: in his words that we remember, repeat and live; in his wisdom, to which all who make his mind their own aspire; in the faces and in the needs of others, especially the poor and the voiceless; in the Eucharistic gathering in the sharing of the bread of his body and the cup of his blood. We know and experience the risen Christ in the Spirit who aides with each of us. "I am with you always."
