Dear friends,

People are beginning to realize that when the “more bubble” bursts — and it will — we will be left feeling that our precious time on earth has been wasted doing things that had no value at all. We will wake up to having given up those few things that really matter for the sake of the many trivial things that don’t. We will wake up to the fact that that overstuffed life was as empty as the real estate bubble’s detritus of foreclosed homes. Here are a few simple steps for becoming more of an Essentialist:

1. Schedule a personal quarterly offsite. Companies invest in quarterly offsite meetings because there is value in rising above day-to-day operations to ask more strategic questions. Similarly, if we want to avoid being tripped up by the trivial, we need to take time once a quarter to think about what is essential and what is nonessential. I have found it helpful to apply the “rule of three”: every three months you take three hours to identify the three things you want to accomplish over the next three months.

2. Rest well to excel. K. Anders Ericsson found in “The Role of Deliberate Practice in the Acquisition of Expert Performance” that a significant difference between good performers and excellent performers was the number of hours they spent practicing. The finding was popularized by Malcolm Gladwell as the “10,000 hour rule.” What few people realize is that the second most highly correlated factor distinguishing the good from the great is how much they sleep. As Ericsson pointed out, top performing violinists slept more than less accomplished violinists: averaging 8.6 hours of sleep every 24 hours.

3. Add expiration dates on new activities. Traditions have an important role in building relationships and memories. However, not every new activity has to become a tradition. The next time you have a successful event, enjoy it, make the memory, and move on.

4. Say no to a good opportunity every week. Just because we are invited to do something isn’t a good enough reason to do it. Feeling empowered by essentialism, one executive turned down the opportunity to serve on a board where she would have been expected to spend 10 hours a week for the next 2-3 years. She said she felt totally liberated when she turned it down. It’s counterintuitive to say no to good opportunities, but if we don’t do it then we won’t have the space to figure out what we really want to invest our time in.

A hundred years from now, when people look back at this period, they will marvel at the stupidity of it all: the stress, the motion sickness, and the self-neglect we put ourselves through. So we have two choices. We can be among the last people caught up in the “more bubble” when it bursts, or we can see the madness for what it is and join the growing community of Essentialists and get more of what matters in our one precious life. Stop bragging about being busy it and start the “disciplined pursuit of less”

Have a good, restful, essentialist summer.

Yours in Christ,

Fr. Joseph Shea

RESPECT LIFE

Don’t just rely on “reputation” of summer programs, but seek information

Sometimes parents rely on the reputation of a particular summer program from past years to determine whether they allow their children to participate. These historical perspectives from other parents and young people should always be a factor to consider in the decision making process, but if you find that the monitoring and screening processes in place are inadequate to assure your child’s safety, do not let the “reputation” of the program or its apparent success be the guiding principle for whether your children are allowed to participate. For more information, visit: http://archla.org/safeguard “Summer Safety Tips can help prevent Sexual Abuse, Virtus,” or call the Archdiocesan Victims Assistance Ministry, (213) 637-7650.

Did you Know?

“Martyrdom makes disciples like their Master, who willingly accepted death for the salvation of the world, and through it they are made like him by the shedding of blood. Therefore, the Church considers it the highest gift and supreme test of love. And while it is given to few, all, however, must be prepared to confess Christ before humanity and to follow him along the way of the cross amid the persecutions which the Church never lacks”.
(Vatican II, Dogmatic Constitution on the Church, 42).

¿Sabia Usted?

No sólo confíe en “reputación” de programas de verano, busque información

Algunas veces los padres de familia confían en la reputación de un programa de verano en particular basados en experiencias pasadas, para determinar si permiten a sus hijos participar en ellos. Esta perspectiva histórica de otros padres y otras personas jóvenes debe ser siempre un factor a considerar en el proceso de toma de decisiones, pero si encuentra que el proceso de monitoreo y de exámenes de las personas que se relacionen con sus hijos no asegura la seguridad de su hijo/a, no deje que la “reputación” del programa o su aparente éxito sea la guía principal para decidir que sus hijos participen. Para más información, visite http://archla.org/safeguard “Información de seguridad para el verano puede ayudar a prevenir el abuso sexual” o llame a la oficina de la Arquidiócesis del Ministerio de Asistencia al (213) 637-7650.

Santos Pedro y Pablo,
Apóstoles
Hoy es una rareza: la celebración del día de un santo que reemplaza la liturgia del domingo. Sólo un puñado de días como éste, con rango oficial de “solemnidad”, son considerados tan fundamentales y primarios en la misión de la Iglesia que pueden interrumpir la secuencia de los domingos. Tal es el caso de san Pedro y san Pablo hoy día.
De cierta manera, cada uno tiene rasgos de personalidad con los que nos podemos identificar: ambos son impetuosos, a veces actuando y hablando sin pensar, contradiciendo los dones espirituales que Dios les había dado. En esos casos, tal vez reciban un empujoncito de Dios, como los que muchos de nosotros hemos sentido. En lo positivo, la fe de estos hombres estuvo profundamente fundamentada en Cristo, incansables y alientes cuando vivían su llamado de anunciar la Buena Noticia de su muerte y resurrección. Quizás nos identificamos más con uno que otro, pero la verdad esencial que celebramos hoy:
es esta: por el Espíritu, Cristo edificó y continúa edificando la Iglesia y da a conocer el Reino por medio de frágiles y
