The calling by God to be one of His Chosen is a most momentous and transformative occasion. Today’s Liturgy of the Word evokes the human reaction to this calling that can transform the very human weaknesses and fears that exist in mankind into unspeakable strengths which lead to a bountiful Divine outcome. As members of today’s “Chosen People”, the modern Christian can reflect on these Scriptures and see himself or herself in this Divine Plan of Salvation. Knowing that Christ was sent to “harvest” humanity and to begin the transformation of creation back into the status of perfection, the Liturgy of the Word reveals the great power, glory and love our Father has for His Children.

In the Book of the Prophet Isaiah, today’s first reading, the calling of Isaiah is revealed. In this calling, the empyreal power of God is contrasted with the failed, debilitated, and insecure nature of God’s chosen messenger, Isaiah. This visionary is given a glimpse of heaven where God reigns in His Holy Temple. Served and adored by heavenly beings, the Divine Presence fills Isaiah with fear as he recognizes his own insecurities, sinfulness and unworthiness. Isaiah, acknowledging that he must be purified to proclaim a Divine message, is visited by an angel who comes and touches the prophet’s lips with an ember from the heavenly altar. With this unusual cleansing, Isaiah answers God’s summons for a messenger with, “Here I am…. Send me”. With this dramatic and miraculous invitation, this well-known prophet begins his work, knowing the Power of God is behind him.

In the reading from the First Letter of Saint Paul to Corinthians, the Apostle to the Gentiles preaches to the converts of that notably sinful city the certainty and birth of their own Divine calling. Paul recounts the order of the witnesses who saw the resurrected Christ affirming their own calling and faith. Paul clearly places his own vocation last as he acknowledges his unworthiness due to his persecution of the Church. Nevertheless, the Apostle to the Gentiles testifies to the Divine work within him that allows and creates the success of all who are called. In each case, the unworthiness of the individual is overshadowed by the Divine making a miraculous transformation to take place.

These same ingredients are found in today’s Gospel according to Luke. Peter and his co-workers have struggled in their daily living to no avail. They have finished their night’s work of repairing the nets as Jesus appears and preaches to the crowd near Lake Gennesaret. Christ enters the boat of Peter and tells him to put out into the lake a short distance, creating a barrier between the people and himself – illustrating a barrier between the Word and the people. This barrier will be breached through the will of God by the apostles symbolized when Jesus has Peter go to deeper waters and cast the nets. The abundance of caught fish, resulting from their obedience and faith, causes the summoning of other ships to assist in the catch. This miraculous catch motivates Peter to fall to his knees and acknowledge Jesus as Lord and the apostle, himself, a sinner. This thalassic miracle allows the apostles to leave the world they know behind and to follow Jesus into a new life that will transform themselves and the Roman Empire.

Today, modern Christians are called to recognize their own sinfulness and calling. Like Isaiah, the apostles and all who have preached the message of repentance and forgiveness, the followers of Christ have been baptized and called to abandon their worldly ways and to introduce to our world the Risen Christ and the God of Love. As Christians worldwide approach the season of Lent, God hints at the Glory that awaits us if we recognize our own unworthiness and allow Him to touch our lips with His burning Word and Spirit. Through our Baptism and Confirmation, we have been sealed in His Spirit and adopted into His Family. We are the “Chosen People” who have assumed the responsibilities and obligations of our brother, Jesus. We must walk among the people of our world with our eyes on Christ and His Words on our lips. Only by doing this, do we respond to God’s love and allow the Kingdom in His creation to come to perfection and fruition.

St. Bernadette was a sickly child of poor parents in the mid 1800’s in Lourdes, France. She gave an
