After last week’s theophany, the Transfiguration of the Lord, the proper disposition of those seeking the Lord is the subject of today’s liturgy. Mankind, as is often the case, has an erroneous thought process in his attitude towards sin. During ancient times, people believed that tragic events occurred due to the actions of individuals or their ancestors. It was not unusual to view the birth defects of a child on the actions of an ancestor who had disobeyed or offended the Divine. God was viewed as a deity who struck down and placed curses on those who offended him. In effect, an innocent child would be the recipient of Divine wrath due to the actions of another. Today’s Liturgy of the Word corrects that misconception. Divine revelation places the responsibility for evil upon the individual who commits the offense. Repentance by the one responsible for the sin is demanded in order that redemption and mercy can be granted. God’s desire to care and be with His Chosen People is manifested throughout our readings.

In today’s first reading from the Book of Exodus, Moses is called by God to journey to Egypt and demand the release of His People. Moses’ attention is garnered by a burning bush that is not consumed. As the soon to be prophet approaches the bush, God calls out to him. Realizing the Theogonic nature of the event, Moses hides his face out of fear as the Lord tells him that the plight of the Chosen People has been heard by the Divine Being. As a result, God has decided to favorably respond and will come down to rescue them. Moses inquires as to the Lord’s name in order to prove his authority to those who would not know him. In ancient times, by giving Moses the Divine name, the Lord cedes to him authority that entitles the prophet to speak for the Divine and enter binding covenantal agreements.

In the second reading from the first Letter of Saint Paul to the Corinthians, Paul explains to the Corinthians the purpose and failure of the Mosaic agreement. The Apostle to the Gentiles explains that the lesson taught by the failure of their ancestors should not go unheeded. Saint Paul expresses that individuals are responsible for their own actions and are responsible for their own sins. Paul desires that Christians should not seek their own pleasures nor grumble and become dissatisfied when things do not go the way they want. Rather, the new Chosen People need to accept whatever the Lord sends their way in the spirit of Christ, who endured the Cross and was subsequently glorified. As Christians awaited the return of the Messiah, Paul announced that they should repent their sins and accept their crosses with joy, in anticipation of the reward that awaited them. He clearly elucidates the belief that each individual is responsible for their own actions.

Finally, Jesus attempts to correct a common misconception of why calamities occur. The Lord is told of Galileans who have accidently died a violent death. The supposition is that they or their ancestors had offended God and were thereby cursed and quickly punished. Christ tells his followers that God is not a God of vengeance. Calamities like this just happen; however, what is important is that people repent before it is too late. Christ emphasizes that everyone needs repentance in order to open themselves to the mercy and love of the Father. Only through this transformation through repentance can the calamities that occur be overcome and placed in proper perspective.

Today, Holy Mother the Church calls us to repentance. She wants us to reveal to our world the mercy and love of the Father. As we witness the disasters of the world, she reassures all that the Father is a God of love and mercy. He is a God that cares for His People and will deliver them from the bonds that bind them. As Lent progresses, Holy Mother the Church calls us to demonstrate the Christian way through almsgiving, prayer and fasting. As we dispossess ourselves of the material world, God calls us to focus upon Him and His love that never ceases. Knowing this, the crosses we incur will seem light as we await the glorification that is to come.

SAINTS OF LENT: SAINT PETER REGALADO

March 30

The fifteenth century was a busy time with wars in Europe, new innovations like the printing press and the discovery of America. During this era, Peter Regalado came from a wealthy and pious family in Spain. At an early age (13), he joined the Franciscan order. He embraced a life of great poverty and penance, leading by example and having great love for the poor and sick. One of the miracles attributed to St. Peter at this time was that the bread he gave to the poor never seemed to run out as long as there were hungry people to feed. For most of his life, St. Peter himself lived only on bread and water. He was a great leader of the Franciscan friars because he did not get angry over the sins of others. He helped them to dedicate themselves to living the Gospel in imitation of Christ.

A volunteer is needed to clean the votive candle holders once a week. This means removing the remains of candles that have been burnt out, removing any wax residue in the holders, refilling the holders with new candles. Please tell Fr. Kiko or Maria Carrillo if you would like to do this task.

Se necesita un voluntario para limpiar los candelabros votivos una vez a la semana. Esto significa quitar los restos de velas que se hayan quemado, eliminar cualquier residuo de cera en los soportes, rellenar los nuevos con velas nuevas. Dígale a Fr. Kiko o Maria Carrillo si desea hacer esta tarea.
