Weekly Message from Deacon Rob on the Readings for Ordinary Time

With politics on the rise, it is not unusual to hear about fundraising dinners where it costs thousands of dollars for a place at the table with a famous person. This is not unusual. The concept that a person is known by the company they keep has been ingrained within the human spirit for ions. In ancient times, a singular method of rising in class status was to dine with the rich and famous. The alliances that were formed around the table would determine any chance for class change. Thus, to hold a banquet and get seated next to a famous or rich personage was the ideal situation.

In today’s Liturgy of Word, Jesus informs us that in the Kingdom of God just the opposite is true. The Christ reveals that in God’s eyes the lowly and humble shall be exalted and the rich humbled. In fact, the only way to guarantee a heavenly reward was to humbly associate oneself with those in need.

In the first reading from the Book of Sirach, the teacher, Jesus Ben Sira, advises people to become virtuous through humility and service to others. This precursor to Christ establishes the foundation for pleasing God – humility. Instead of following the worldly custom of class advancement through using your resources for self-aggrandizement, Ben Sira advises all to place God first and give alms to the poor. Through this method, the God of All will be pleased and sins atoned. It is this teacher’s belief that by humbly putting God and others before yourself is the one true way that true wisdom is discovered and human growth takes place.

For the early Christians, the epitome of true Wisdom is Jesus. Christ, being fully human and Divine, exemplifies the path for His followers. He associated Himself with the lowly and ministered to the poor. He endured His sufferings out of love of the Father and His neighbor. In the Letters to the Hebrews, the past and present are merged with examples of how God is revealed to His People. In pre-messianic times, the Holy was approached with trepidation and awe. Now, through Christ, Christians could approach the Divine with confidence due to their incorporation and adoption as sons and daughters of God through Jesus, the perfect mediator. Now, the new “Chosen People” could access Mount Zion and the New Jerusalem because Jesus, Himself, brought all to the Father.

The means to access the Heavenly Banquet is the theme of today’s Gospel according to Luke. Jesus has been invited to a banquet sponsored by a Pharisee. He has noticed that people are playing the social game by attempting to get seated in the places of honor. Frustrated with witnessing this human fault, Christ has two messages – one for the guests and one for the host. Jesus tells the guest that it would be better for them to seek the lowest place because the host would come and move you publicly to a higher station. Thus, you would be exalted before all. Then, more poignantly, Christ advises the Pharisee that, in the eyes of God, it would be more beneficial for him not to invite the rich and famous to a banquet; rather, an invitation to the poor and needy would garner him far greater rewards at the Resurrection of the righteous.

Holy Mother the Church reminds us, today, of that same lesson. In our world where the rich and famous continue this ancient practice where social advancement is still accomplished through self-aggrandizement and social contacts, Christ’s message echoes through the centuries. In the eyes of God, it is poor, needy and marginalized that are our way to the Resurrection of the righteous. The mammon of this world is here solely for our benefit to use as tools in showering God’s love on our fellow man. God made us in His image and showed us, through Christ, what true sacrifice looked like. Just as Jesus came “to serve. Not to be served” so, too, our reason for existence is the same. As we await the Final Judgement and the end of the Church year, this passage of Luke should echo in our minds and cause us to put our priorities in order so that we can enter the Kingdom of God and partake in the Eternal Banquet.
