

THE NATIVITY OF THE LORD (CHRISTMAS)

VOL. XLVI NO. 52

DECEMBER 25, 2016

MESSAGE FROM DEACON WILLIAM POLLINGUE
REFLECTIONS ON THE INCARNATION

With the arrival of Christmas and all of the joy that it brings, we must take care so that we not overlook the Mystery that is taking place. Through the Virgin Mary, Jesus is coming into this world, as one of us, so that he can undo what Adam had done. This event, known as the Incarnation, which means “the act of being made flesh,” is describing the Son of God sharing in our human nature. The early Church Fathers wrote: “God has become man, so that man might become God.” Nothing could be more clearly documented in the Scriptures than the fact that the principle purpose of the incarnation was to save men from their sins: “For the son of Man has come to seek and to save that which was lost” (Luke 19:10; cf. Matt. 9:13; Mark 10:45).

It is for this reason that the doctrine of the incarnation is so central to a biblical Christian celebration of Christmas. If we are to truly enter into the spirit and celebration of Christmas in Christian worship then we must focus our attention on the event of the incarnation, which is the heart of the Christmas message. Where we stand on the doctrine of the incarnation often defines the dividing line between orthodoxy and heresy, between true Christianity and other religious cults. God, taking upon himself a share in human nature, has been a real stumbling-block for people wanting to accept Christianity. It is in the mystery of the God-Man, the incarnation, that Jews, Moslems, and others encounter many other difficulties as well; such mysteries as the virgin birth, miracles, and even the resurrection are hard to grasp without a true acceptance of the incarnation.
