Procession to Mark New United Church

By RICHARD WAGER
Church Editor

A colorful ecclesiastical procession from Hotel Cleveland up Superior Avenue and E. 6th Street to Public Music Hall will herald the birth Tuesday night of the United Church of Christ, before the eyes of the church world.

Delegates of the Evangelical and Reformed Church and the Congregational Christian Churches will convene in a Uniting General Synod through Thursday to effect the merger of the two denominations.

Spokesmen for the General Council of the Congregational Christian Churches said yesterday in New York that a law suit filed against the council in a Federal court there Thursday would not interfere with the meeting scheduled to start Tuesday.

The suit, filed by four churches, was seen by some observers as an attempt to "embarrass" the merger. However, the spokesman for the General Council said the suit was for a declaratory judgment only and did not seek an injunction.

Tomorrow has been set as a day for celebration and special prayers for the union among the nearly 8,300 churches of the two bodies.

Typical of the services will be those at First Evangelical and Reformed Church, Lakewood, where the Rev. Robert F. Beck, pastor, will speak on "For This We Unite" at 8:15 and 10:45 a.m.

Ceremony Solemn

The simple but solemn ceremony of union Tuesday night will be led by Dr. Fred H. Hoskins of Oak Park, Ill., minister and secretary of the General Council of the Congregational Christian Churches, and Dr. James E. Wagner of Philadelphia, president of the Evangelical and Reformed Church.

Beginning about 7:30 that night, the more than 900 delegates and church dignitaries will form the downtown procession. Sharing places of honor will be the cross of the Christian church, a Bible, the Christian flag and flags of the 18 countries where the two churches have missionary work.

The solemn opening of the Bible will signal the convening of the Uniting Synod. Each denomination will report its actions authorizing the union, recorded at each's national convention last year. Each group also elected 357 delegates to the new synod.

They will be asked to assent to a resolution which will unite the General Council of the Congregational Christian Churches with the Evangelical and Reformed Church to form the United Church of Christ.

Communion Set

A communion service will be held in the Old Stone Church Wednesday morning before the synod's business sessions begin in Public Music Hall.

The keynote address that night will be given by the Rt. Rev. J. E. Lesslie Newbigin of the Church of South India, a union of several denominational bodies. He is coming from India especially for this address.

The synod will elect co-presidents and co-secretaries and a central staff of the new church. A major item of business will be the election of a commission to draft a constitution for the new church.

The Rev. Elam G. Wiest, president of the Northeast Ohio Synod of the Evangelical and Reformed Church, is chairman of the local committee that has made arrangements for the convention.

Most significant factor in the union is that the two church participants have differing forms of government and background. The Evangelical and Reformed Church operates under a presbyterian system of regional and national synods, while the Congregational Christian Churches are traditionally "free" churches, each local congregation autonomous and not subject to denominational control.

Priest's 20 Years Among Cleveland Negroes to End

Twenty years of work among the colored people of Cleveland will end for the Rev. Melchior Lochtefeld, C. PP. S., Wednesday when he leaves the pastorate of St. Edward's Church, Woodland Ave.-S.E. and E. 69th Street, for a new assignment.

REV. FRANK C. LAUDICK

Father Lochtefeld becomes pastor of St. Michael's Church, Kalida, O., this week, after completing 14 years as pastor of St. Edward's. He spent the previous six years at the Church of Our Lady of the Blessed Sacrament, 2350 E. 79th Street.

Our Lady's Church was the first in Cleveland established for Negro Catholics. St. Edward's, founded in 1871, became a church for Negro Catholics in 1943.

In another transfer, the Rev. Frank C. Laudick, C. PP. S., pastor of Our Lady of Good Counsel Church, 4423 Pearl Road S.W., will become pastor of St. John's Church, Glandorf, O. Father Laudick has been at the local parish for the past 10 years.

Father Lochtefeld will be honored at a reception at 3:30 tomorrow, and again at 7:30. Father Laudick's reception will be at 7 p.m. He will be succeeded here by the Rev. Verner Verhoff, who has been assistant at Our Lady of the Blessed Sacrament Church.

The Rev. Anthony Gamble, spiritual director of St. Charles Seminary, Carthagena, O., succeeds Father Laudick.

In other transfers, the Rev. William Stack, assistant at St. Edward's, joins the Precious Blood Mission Band and will have temporary residence at Brunnerdale Seminary near Canton.

The Rev. Cyril Kennedy, another assistant at Our Lady of the Blessed Sacrament, becomes pastor of St. Augustine's Church, Youngstown. He succeeds the Rev. Vincent Parr, a former assistant at St. Edwards who is assigned to a pastorate in Huntington, W. Va.

The Rev. Henry Frantz of St. Joseph, Mo., and the Rev. Paul Wohlwend of Detroit come to Our Lady of the Blessed Sacrament Church as assistants.

Euclid Avenue Church to Hold Home-Coming

Euclid Avenue Congregational Church will turn back the pages of its long history at a special home-coming observance tomorrow.

Dr. Fred Hoskins of Oak Park, Ill., minister and secretary of the General Council of the Congregational Christian Churches, will speak at the 11 a.m. service. Dr. William A. Leath, pastor since 1955, will officiate, assisted by the Rev. Donald C. Armstrong, his associate, and Dr. Ferdinand Q. Blanchard, pastor emeritus, who was senior pastor for 37 years.

Fred L. Fulton, long a ranking layman of the church, will preside at a luncheon set for 12:45 p.m.

A number of former members have been invited to the celebration, to view the remodeled and redecorated interior of the church, to see its operation as its members and leaders have determined to serve the changing area of the city rather than move to the suburbs, and to greet old friends.

Euclid Avenue Church, formed more than 112 years ago in what was then a farming community, is now the center of a pilot project of the Congregational Christian denomination in serving an inner city neighborhood.

News Writers on Religion Convene Here Tomorrow

Church editors and reporters from more than 45 newspapers and wire services from various points of the United States will convene in Hotel Manger tomorrow through Tuesday for the ninth annual meeting of the Religious Newswriters Association.

Highlight of the convention will be a dinner Monday night in Hotel Cleveland for the editors, their wives and husbands given by the Forest City Publishing Co., publishers of the Plain Dealer and The News. Congressman Frances Payne Bolton, who was named "Churchwoman of the Year" by the Washington Pilgrimage of American Churchmen in 1954, will speak.

The dinner will spotlight also the presentation of the association's annual Supple Award for excellence in religious journalism.

The prize is in memory of James O. Supple, former church editor of the Chicago Sun-Times, who was killed in 1950 in an airplane crash while en route to cover the Korean conflict for his newspaper.

The religious newswriters will launch their meeting at 2 p.m. tomorrow with the annual session of the Ohio Chapter of the association, with William Dinwoodie of the Cleveland News, Ohio president, in charge.

Caspar Nannes, church editor of the Washington Evening Star, who is national RNA president, will speak. Saturday church pages from Ohio dailies will be displayed and discussed by Frank Stewart of the Cleveland Press and Paul Sullivan of the Cincinnati Times-Star.

Rabbi Abba H. Silver of The Temple will speak at a dinner, tomorrow night at Hotel Statler, given by the Cleveland Press.

Auxiliary Bishop John J. Krol of the Catholic Diocese of Cleveland will address the church editors Monday morning.

The convention will end with a luncheon Tuesday at Hotel Manger given by the publicity department of the Congregational Christian Churches.
