

Gospel Justice:
A Living Challenge for the Church in Mission
ଓସକାଥଲିକ୍ ମିସନ୍ ଆସୋସିଏସନ୍

“Mission” has meant many things to people: a statement of purpose, an activity, a fruit (olive, grape, or fig), being sent to a far-away place, or even a cinema (The Mission). For the Baptized person, however, mission is a dynamic grace rooted in an encounter with Christ, a sharing of life in the Trinity, a communion in God’s loving design for humanity and indeed all of creation.

Similarly the concept of “Justice”, while central to every culture, is understood differently: law, fairness, judgment, condemnation for wrongdoing, moral rectitude, harmonious relationship. What does the Gospel tell us about it?

Many USCMA members and organizations live out the mission of the Church by striving for justice. During this year’s annual USCMA Conference missioners will examine the question of how mission and justice are rooted in the Gospel, of how these concepts are interrelated, indeed even constitutive of each other. The theme, Gospel Justice: A Living Challenge for the Church in Mission, confronts all who call themselves Christian.

While recognizing that a considerable portion of our world understands, advocates for, and acts on justice issues in vastly different ways, the keynote addresses presented at this year’s Mission Conference will look at justice through the lenses of Scripture, Catholic Social Teachings, and basic dispositions of our human hearts. Our Workshops and Dialogue Sessions will delve deeper into various aspects of Gospel Justice and will examine how each of us is called to work for justice.
