My Dear Parish Family,

We are still in the early stages of St. Luke’s telling of the story of Jesus’ public ministry and mission. After His baptism and His ill-fated homecoming in Nazareth, Jesus has had some clashes with the Pharisees and self-righteous rulers over His eating with sinners, breaking Sabbath regulations and telling the paralytic, “your sins are forgiven.” He has called to Himself a group of fishermen, a zealot and a tax collector to be His followers. He tells these new disciples that they are blessed when they are hungry, poor and excluded and the rich, well-fed and popular are in trouble. Clearly He has endeared Himself, not to the powers-that-be, but to the little man.

Just when the admiration of the people begins to swell, Jesus’ teachings take a strange turn. “To you who hear I say, love your enemies, do good to those who hate you, bless those who curse you, pray for those who mistreat you.” Can He really mean this? Is there some kind of mysterious, symbolic meaning in these impractical directions? It would seem that is not the case because Jesus continues, “To the person who strikes you on one cheek, offer the other one as well, and from the person who takes your cloak, do not withhold even your tunic.” It is impossible to overestimate how radical these instructions sounded to those first followers. It is perhaps even more radical than these sound to us in our violent world today.

To love our enemies, means to will the good of even our enemies. Remember that love is not an emotion but a decision of the heart. To turn the other cheek to those who strike us is not a sign of weakness, but founded on a strength that says I will take this insult and not retaliate in an effort to force you to deal with me a person, not an object. To give even more to those who rob you frustrates them into wondering how much more they could have gained if they had just asked.

This advice, these instructions are completely, 100% impractical. It is not what we would consider a pragmatic approach to life. Why would Jesus ask of us such radical rules of engagement with others? It is because we are called not be children of this world, but children of the Most High, for He Himself is kind to the ungrateful and the wicked.

If we were to take this seriously, it would make us quite vulnerable; it could get us hurt, even killed. In fact, that is exactly what happened to Jesus. He loved His enemies even with His dying breath from the cross. He is calling us to love in this same radical fashion.

Radical, indeed.

Peace of Christ,
Deacon Bruce
