Living with Christ this week

The cross of Christ calls us to surrender ourselves to the transforming power of God's love. Paul encourages the Corinthians to a more conscious participation in their eucharistic meals and to understand the great example of transformation: Christ's death and resurrection. In the gospels, Jesus connects our inner transformation into disciples with the outer changes from healings and forgiveness.

Reflecting Jesus' love and mercy

Today's readings all reference to the central theme of forgiveness and the importance of showing God's mercy to others to receive it ourselves.

In the gospel, Jesus uses the parable of the unforgiving servant to teach of the need to always forgive our neighbor. We hear on Sunday about a man who pleads for forgiveness but refuses to grant the same. This ironic tale showing the hypocrisy of society aptly presents both the power and difficulty of forgiveness. As recited in the Lord's Prayer and detailed in the readings of Sunday's Mass, we are challenged to demonstrate our desire for God's unconditional love and compassion through our daily practice of the Golden Rule.

Jesus reminds us how new life through forgiveness far outweighs the cost of any debt owed. Yet, just as the king's remission of the servant's debt shows God's redemption from our sin by his invaluable and boundless grace, we, too, must never overlook our calling and responsibility to model the same to our brothers and sisters in Christ. Just a little humor

A nurse on the pediatric ward, before listening to the little ones' chests, would plug the stethoscope into their ears and let them listen to their own hearts.

Their eyes would always light up with awe. But she never got a response to equal four-year-old David's. She placed the disk over his heart. "Listen," she said, "what do you suppose that is?"

He drew his eyebrows together in a puzzled line and looked up, as if lost in the mystery of the strange tap-tap-tapping deep in his chest.

Then his face broke out in a wondrous grin. "Is that Jesus knocking?" he asked.

"Behold I stand at the door and knock: if any man hear my voice, and open the door, I will come in to him, and will sup with him, and he with me." Rev 3:20
