

Count as high as you can then have mom or dad count 10 more than your highest.

At snack time sit at the table and count your fruit snacks, cookies or crackers before eating them. Tell someone what your total is.

Spell your 1st name aloud Then practice writing your 1st name.

*additional- a parent can write name with a yellow marker for them to trace as well.

Practice phone number

A fun way to get kids to remember your # is say it in chant or jingle. Also use your phone # as your "passcode", you say it while you dial it on their belly to get past them. This is my kids fav. They find places to block me so I will do it

Practice Scissor Skills

Color hunt around the house and/or in the yard
Someone calls out a color while everyone tries to find 5 items that color then on to the next color.

Roll the dice actions

Grab dice from a board game in the house each person takes a turn to roll the dice, choose an action and the person that must do it. Count as you do the action. Jumping jacks, squat jumps, leg lifts, push-ups, crunches etc.

Read, read, read

Every Day & Every Night

Have anyone read to you but also find a picture book and "read" to the grown-ups or siblings. It may be a book your child has memorized or a picture book that they are using the picture to tell you a story 😊
