Dear Kindergarten families,

Your children are doing so well! We had such a great week! They all really seem to love school and are getting to know each other and our routine.

Today we made our first visit to our school's library. Your child got to pick out a book to take home for the weekend! They were super excited about it and we talked about how we are just borrowing the books and what that meant. I hope you all enjoy reading them together.

Your children also got to vote today for our new student council president, vice-president, secretary and treasurer. We participated in yesterday's constitution day event so that they could see the candidates.

Thank you to all of you for making sure your child does his/her homework! It is so very important for them and helps them retain what we're learning! Once again, they were so excited to pick prizes today! 😊

Have a blessed weekend!

Ms. Jones

“Fun Work”!

Next week we will be learning about how God gives us pets and people to love us. Our fun work assignment this weekend is to have your child bring in pictures of their family and pets if you have them. Please make sure they are ones that I can display for a while here at school.

Thank you!
