Prayer to Mary to revive the spirit of Advent

By Philip Kosloski

Pope Benedict XVI prayed to the "Mother of Hope" to prepare for Christmas.

Advent is a beautiful liturgical season in the Catholic Church, but one that is increasingly difficult to celebrate. Too often the material celebration of Christmas overtakes the spiritual preparation that is at the heart of Advent.

Pope Benedict XVI saw this as well and during his pontificate, looked to the Virgin Mary for inspiration. In particular, he looked to her as the "Mother of Hope," who can help reorient our lives to God and live as Christians who longingly hope for a future united with God for all eternity.

Here is a short prayer he composed for a homily he gave at the beginning of Advent that we can recite daily to focus our attention on God during this special time of year.

O Mary, Virgin of expectation and Mother of hope, revive the spirit of Advent in your entire Church, so that all humanity may start out anew on the journey towards Bethlehem, from which it came, and that the Sun that dawns upon us from on high will come once again to visit us, Christ our God. Amen.

The profound symbolism of violet and rose in Advent

By Philip Kosloski

Advent is a special time of preparation in the liturgical year, focusing our hearts on the celebration of Jesus' birth in Bethlehem as well as looking forward to when Jesus will come again. To remind us of these and many other spiritual truths, the Church has chosen the color violet to be the primary color of Advent.

Violet has a long history and was a rare color in the ancient world, not easily made into dye that could be used with clothing. While it was traditionally connected to kings and royalty, it also became associated with penance, making it a somber color and chosen by the Church for penitential seasons.

In an issue of The American Ecclesiastical Review (printed in 1902), the author gives a unique explanation behind the reason why violet and rose were chosen for Advent.

Violet vestments signify on the whole Sorrow, and are meant to inspire a grave and thoughtful attitude in the faithful who attend the liturgical services. If you mix blue and red in liquid colors you obtain violet. Blue is the color of heaven and suggests that our thoughts turn away from earth. Red is the color of martyrdom, of blood, and of the flame which consumes the sacrifice. A combination of the two, which makes violet, is, therefore, indicative of sacrifice with a view to heaven, unselfish devotion.

In particular, violet is used in the season of "Advent, when the spirit of reflection and the purging of the heart (as a preparation to meet the poor and humble Christ Child in the Cave of Bethlehem) call for self-denial from motives in which heaven leads the soul against earthly attachments."

Additionally, the color violet is interrupted on the Third Sunday of Advent by the color rose, to signal the coming joy of Christmas.

On the third Sunday of Advent ... when there is a momentary interruption of the penitential strains lest the soul wrapt in continuous darkness might become disconsolate, the Church permits—with the sounds of music and the flowers on the altar—a light purple approaching rose color, to indicate the tone of hopeful joy which mingles with and relieves the application to penance. It is the encouraging caress of the Spouse, our holy Mother, bidding her sons and daughters to keep on bravely in the spirit of faith.

The Church understands that it is difficult to perform penance for an extended period of time and pauses such mortification so that we can anticipate the joy we will soon embrace.

[T]he season is long, the work tiresome, and the body weak. And as the laborer rests at times in the midst of his task, to take a glance at what has been accomplished, and to refresh himself with the anticipation of the joy that awaits him at the end of his work, so the Christian stops in the midst of Advent preparation to rehearse for a moment the sweet melody of coming Christmas chant and to take in the full meaning of the encouraging words of the Holy Spouse, his Mother the Church, as she calls out to her children "Gaudete," that is "Be joyful," the Lord, the Emmanuel, your consolation and Savior is at hand!

The colors of violet and rose are rich in their symbolism and remind us of the many spiritual themes behind the season of Advent. The next time you go to Mass, or see an Advent wreath, remember these beautiful truths and let them prepare your heart for Christmas.

Adviento: ¿por qué esperar un evento que ya ha tenido lugar?

Por el Hermano Thierry-Dominique Humbrech

El Adviento es un tiempo de espera, pero si Jesús ya ha venido, ¿cuál es entonces su significado?

El año litúrgico ha comenzado. El Adviento ha vuelto. Siempre vuelve demasiado pronto. Nos recuerda que la Navidad ya está en nuestras puertas, que tendremos que estrujar nuestro cerebro para encontrar regalos que ofrecer, sin contar con el miedo a arruinarnos. Pero, ¿por qué esperar un evento que ya ha tenido lugar?

De todas maneras, esperar a Cristo durante un mes, una hora a la semana, o sea cuatro horas en total, no convertirá el mes de diciembre en una sala de espera gigante. Como el sacerdote dice en cada misa que tenemos que esperar (si vamos todos los días, puede volverse agotador), esperemos.

La espera de una natividad que ya ha tenido lugar

Hay algo raro al respecto. Esperamos el regreso de Cristo, sí, en su gloria, el día del Juicio Final, el día en que resucitaremos con Él, con nuestro cuerpo. Tal espera es comprensible, ella marca el futuro y la esperanza.

Pero, ¿podemos esperar una natividad que ya ha tenido lugar?

En verdad, el Adviento no es exactamente una espera. No tenemos que esperar a Aquel que se ha encarnado para siempre. Él nos precede en todo. Si hay espera, es desde el punto de vista litúrgico, cuando se despliega el año nuevo para hacernos vivir lo que Jesús ya ha vivido, recibir las gracias que Él ha dado a todos.

La espera es pedagógica, teatral; es la memoria de los misterios, la celebración de las etapas de la salvación. Esta espera nos pone en presencia de Aquel que viene, cada día, para ofrecernos su gracia. Es Él quien hace la antecámara.

Una oportunidad para comenzar de nuevo

Tenemos necesidad de ritmos, de salidas, un poco como los niños a los que les gusta tanto, al comienzo de la escuela, abrir un cuaderno nuevo. La vida de oración, afectada por la crema solar del verano, necesita un reinicio, largo tiempo aplazado. No se trata de hacer las mismas cosas, sino de profundizar. ¿Cómo profundizar sin repetirse? Escuchando con más atención los Evangelios de la Misa, magníficos en este período. También hay que prepararlos, reaprenderlos y "hacerlos venir" durante la semana.
