ROSARY ALTAR SOCIETY CARE COMMITTEE
On duty the week of November 13 to November 19 – Joe

The Cenacle of Life Prayer Group meets every Friday at 4:00PM in the Chapel to recite the Rosary.

An action of small value performed with much love is far more excellent than one of a higher virtue, done with less love of God.
- St. Francis de Sales (1567-1622)

THIRTY-THIRD SUNDAY IN ORDINARY TIME
First Reading: Malachi 3:19-20a
The prophet Malachi warned that the time would come when all the evil people would be punished. He then speaks of the arrival of "the sun of justice, with its healing rays," believed by most to mean Jesus.
Second Reading: 2 Thessalonians 3:7-12
Some of the Thessalonians claimed Christ's return was imminent, so they stopped working and asked others for food. Paul describes his willingness to work, so that he would not impose on others. He encourages them to follow his example and earn their own living.
Gospel: Luke 21:5-19
Jesus warns of the persecution all Christians will face because of him, and how some will even be put to death. Yet he says they will not be harmed because "by patient endurance you will save your lives." If Jesus' followers are loyal, they will be resurrected and their suffering will end.

“The Cross – The Ultimate Sign of God’s Mercy” by Msgr. Peter J. Vaghi

Punctuating the evil and cruel treatment Jesus suffered, we hear a voice, His prayerful voice, a voice from the Cross of divine generosity which is so very consoling – “Father, forgive them, they know not what they do.” This is the first of seven sets of words from the Cross. His first words, unique to Luke’s Gospel (which could be called the Gospel of forgiveness), are directed to His Father, but on behalf not of His friends but of His enemies. It is as if Jesus’ exhortation to forgive not simply seven times, but seven times seventy times (Mt 18:21), takes on new credibility, new vitality and new meaning for us. The words of the Our Father, Jesus’ prayer par excellence, “forgive us our trespasses as we forgive those who trespass against us,” make more and more sense, maybe for the first time. God, after all is the author of that prayer.

Jesus witnessed concretely to His own teaching – in the midst of His awful suffering on the pulpit of the Cross. His first word is not only a teaching. It is a prayerful act of mercy. In effect, it is a summary of the Gospel of Mercy – the restorative power of our God. For sure, it was a terrible scene, yet one punctuated with a haunting beauty that came forth with credibility from the magnificent love of His forgiving and merciful heart.

The Cross, ultimately and definitively illumined by the Resurrection, is, however, not primarily a sign of death, although death took place there. It was not just any death – but the death of One who put death to death forever. The Cross is thus a sign of life. It is the tree of life. It is not a sign of frustration nor of defeat, but is the ultimate sign of mercy and hope and victory for you and me who call ourselves Christians. It is the constant reminder of Christ’s presence to us precisely and amidst our own daily suffering. Where our lives experience burden, routine, inner conflict, illness, the various faces of suffering, Christ’s Cross reminds us that He walked that path before, and we are not alone; He continues to walk with us in our daily crosses.

Our eyes must always be fixed on Jesus himself. After His earthly message had been rejected, He decided to walk in the path of suffering, our suffering. Embracing suffering, for each one of us (which He actually did), was truly God’s final offer of mercy. He knew suffering from the inside.

In theological language, we say He actually took our place in His suffering and death. It is called substitutionary atonement.” For only God and God alone can deliver us from our deepest adversity, the affliction of death. “For our sake he made him to be sin who did not know sin, so that we might become the righteousness of God in him (2 Cor 5:21).
