The change of fortune makes known that the former rich man wants to communicate with poor Lazarus so that he may come and relieve him of his suffering. In other words, only when suffering is experienced in one's own flesh can the needs of others be understood. Let us ask Jesus to make us open our hands to the poor and needy in order to reach one day the joys of his Kingdom.

FROM THE PASTOR'S DESK

“Woe to those who feel safe and comfortable”
(Amos 6: 1)

As the days shorten and the weather gets colder we also are closer to the harvest season. We are called, as Jesus disciples, to participate in a very special harvest. St. Paul and Timothy tell us to seek justice, piety, faith, love, patience and generosity. This call is a whole program of life so that once we reap we can bear fruits of holiness and solidarity in our own community.

Amos, the prophet, warns the rich and all those who enrich themselves at the expense of the poor "woe to those who feel safe." For the prophet, it is not possible that while the people of Israel suffer bitterness and defeat the rich stay in bed and rest in their ivory beds. It is clear to Amos that the rich and powerful will be the first to be sent into exile. Similarly in the Gospel the rich man ignores the fate of poor Lazarus who asks for alms at the door of his house. Interestingly, the rich man abounds in material goods on earth, but he has no name. Lazarus, the poor man is identified by his name despite lacking all or almost everything as the food that sustains him. Another paradox of the Gospel is that the rich will suffer the torments of condemnation while Lazarus receives the reward in the after life.

Today when 2000 years of Christianity have passed we still find contrasts between the poor and the rich; we even build walls that do not let in those who seek bread and security. The parable of Jesus invites us to see that beyond our temporal reality rises another that changes everything. Ironically, the division between rich and poor has changed the way it has passed from one side to the other. What was once a door to move from one side to the other has become an impassable chasm, impossible to cross. Therefore, our commitment as believers invites us to bring our solidarity to those who are in need (i.e, crossing the door) now that we are all on the earth. Later, it will be too late.

The rich man is condemned not for his wealth but because he was not able to look beyond the walls that give him his own security and comfort. The tragic thing about the parable is that the rich man only realizes the existence of poor Lazarus now that he is suffering while Lazarus is enjoying his own reward at the bosom of Patriarch Abraham.

SING TO THE LORD - Great news! 2 different parishioners commented last weekend that they thought the singing was getting better at our English Masses! Hallelujah! Maybe the "repetition thing" is working. Please try to keep up the momentum as we strive to "make a joyful noise unto the Lord" at OLMC (not a sotto voce, weak or wimpy sound!) "Full active, conscious participation" is what the "Constitution on the Sacred Liturgy" asks of us.

This is the last weekend for the September Hymn Sheets. New, beautiful music for October! Do keep singing! As Betty Midler says ... God is watching us! (No ~ we're not singing that song at Mass!)

NOTICE OF MASS SCHEDULE CHANGE - When the school has its monthly Mass (which is normally the first Friday of the month), the 8:00am Mass will be changed to 9:00am, to help our overworked priests.
