Note from Fr. Tom:

In today’s Gospel, the disciples approach Jesus and ask him to teach them how to pray which is a very curious question. Presuming that the disciples were faithful to their religious obligations, and that they prayed regularly, it would be curious to know why the disciples would ask Jesus to teach them something more about prayer. Maybe their prayer was not spiritually satisfying. Maybe they thought there were some magic words they should use to get God’s attention or to get God to give them what they wanted and to answer their prayer more quickly. Perhaps they wondered whether, when God didn’t answer, it was a sign God didn’t want to be bothered with it. Perhaps they figured God has a lot of people asking for things all the time, and he can’t keep up with the demand, so maybe they thought Jesus could teach them how to get to the top of God’s “to do” list. Maybe they thought God forgot them, or due to their sinfulness they weren’t worthy of any favor from God. But Jesus insists that we are important to God, and that he loves us, for we are his children. So we should approach him with our needs, and not give up as Jesus tells us.

Where we usually stumble and fall when it comes to prayer is when we feel God is not answering our prayers. We think of prayer as a way to change God, and when we haven’t been able to do that, we stop trying. God knows what we need before we ask him. If we persevere in prayer, we may discover that while we were busy trying to get him to do something for us, he was busy working in us the entire time. Jesus teaches us in the Our Father, that we must first pray, “Thy will be done” before we get busy telling him what we want him to do for us. He wants us to trust that he will respond to us, even if he chooses not to give us what we want. He gives us something better because his will is always ordered toward our greater good.

May God bless you all! Fr. Tom
